Polite Japan
Strange Manchu Republic
The Universe Is Safe
Brutality Never Useful

By Arthur Brisbane

HODGE, CAL., Feb. 19—The League of Nations, tired of repeating "please stop fighting," asks Japan "where's your sense of honor?"

Japan, politest of nations, does not laugh or ask "what about your European scraps of paper?" Japan calmly builds a large new flying field, near the foreign settlement, and with the gracious permission of the Mikado, sends in 30,000 more men, and more airplanes.

Two British sailors, killed accidentally by Chinese shells, complicates the Shanghai problem. Britain takes the incident calmly. Our government talks of removing all Americans from the fighting zone, if conditions get worse. Why wait for a "remember the Maine" incident?

Von Weigand says the Chinese are directed by German military men, engineers, gunners and aviation experts. That explains, perhaps, the number of Japanese killed and the stubborn defense of the Chinese fort.

The sooner we move out and leave Asia to its private fight, the better. We have enough to do at home.

Japan plans to make of Manchuria a "republic directed by Tokio." It would have the old Chinese five-barred flag, with Japanese flying sun spread over it, and would be called "Ankuo," meaning "Land of Peace."

Chinese say that would mean Manchuria run in the interest of Japanese investments and industries, with no especial attention to the millions of Chinese.

Some Americans might say, "What of it?" This is a republic managed for the benefit of its investment, industries, and high finance, but it gets along pretty well, outside of depressions.

You hear about a two billion dollar government fund for banks and other corporations, about helping railroads, but what do you hear about helping the hundred and twenty odd million unimportant little people? Nothing, except that they must have no dole, because that might pauperize them.

If you have worried about predictions of Jeans and Edington hear Drs. Barnett and Tolman, of the University of California at Los Angeles and the California Institute of Technology. Jeans and Edington say the universe is running down, will die, and nothing can bring it back to life. Barnett and Tolman say, in substance, "nonsense, the universe is a great self-winding cosmos, and will last forever."

The 100-inch telescope takes us into space a distance of 100,000,000 light years. Calculate that. It is the distance that light, going 186,000 miles a second, could travel in 100,000,000 years.

Within the space thus revealed are millions of "island universes," like our own little locality, which consists of thirty thousand million suns, plus any planets that may travel with them.

The new 200-inch telescope under construction will carry the eye of man other millions of light years into space, revealing other universes. And, this argument for the comfort of commonplace minds, ignorant of higher mathematics, it is clear that the universe will not die, since time has lasted forever, back of us, and in that past eternity there has been plenty of time for the universe to run down and die, if it could ever die.

Also, which is more important to our little globe, this earth will last, with the sun to warm it, hundreds of millions of years more. Therefore, considering that we are only 12,000 years from the late Stone Age, you can see that man has time ahead to become civilized.

Police Recorder Johnson, of Woodbury, N. J., ordered a policeman to take off his belt and lash ten times, each of three boys, accused of disorderly conduct in a theater. He will try that experiment no more, for he finds that the three boys are looked upon as heroes by other mischievous youths.

So it used to be with hangings in public when the criminals were made heroes. It is never a good thing for the law to set the example in brutality.

Russia takes second place in oil production for 1931, but is far behind the United States, which includes over 62 per cent of the total world supply against about 12 per cent, for Russia.

A reader suggests that the government buy back its own bonds, issuing currency to pay for them, holding the bonds as security for currency thus issued. This would end payment of interest on bonds thus purchased, and the bond owners would have their money for useful investment. Is that a good idea, or is it Bolshevism to suggest that the government obtain money EVER without paying interest to institutions of its own creation?

Garner Ranks Among Leading Contestants

Statement of William G. McAdoo endorsing John N. Garner—On Page 6.

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—Whether or not he will be there at convention time, John Garner of Texas, now appears headed for a place among the really strong contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination.

William G. McAdoo's announcement of support for Garner, not only put in the Texan's train a man who has been powerful in the party but emphasized the determined efforts of the Garner supporters to shove him into the breach created by the "stop-Roosevelt" movement.

Garner, behind a wall of silence on things political which is broken only to disavow connection with the acts of his supporters, sticks to the job of running the House of Representatives from the Speaker's chair.

This job is the most conspicuous one nationally now filled by a Democrat, and Garner's handling of it is what his volunteer supporters count on to arouse enthusiasm on a country-wide scale.

McAdoo spoke of Garner as a candidate under whom all elements of the party could unite. He related his own personal experience, as Secretary of the Treasury, with Garner's grasp of National affairs. Then he laid on heavily with the argument that Garner is not involved in any party promises, and that as "one of the people" he makes a strong appeal to important elements in the party.

McAdoo is one of the staunchest of drys, and his announcement was considered important in the light of the prohibition issue, for Garner, although since voting for enforcement measures, cast his ballot against adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Only a few days ago Senator Sheppard of Texas came out for a national compaign in Garner's behalf, and Sheppard was a moving force behind adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment.

What remains to be seen is whether Garner's friends will succeed in rounding up an imposing total of delegate votes before the Chicago convention is held, or whether they must rest their hopes on a deadlock after the national gathering opens.

Roosevelt's campaign has been far advanced in the South and West logical territory for Garner support, and the militant efforts now being made in behalf of the New York governor seek, of course, to avoid any deadlock by landsliding him through to victory.

Latest Returns From Irish Election Show Gains for President Cosgrave

Dublin, Feb. 19 (AP)—Revisions and accumulations of returns from Tuesday's election showed William T. Cosgrave's government creeping up on Eamon De Valera and his Fianna Fail.

De Valera lost three seats on revision alone under the proportional representation voting system.

The government party picked up four seats by accumulation and the independents held ten already credited to them. Labor, allies of the Fianna Fail retained only five seats on the revision.

The count stood Fianna Fail, 45; Labor, 5; Government, 36; and Independents, 10. Thus the Fianna Fail and allies held 50 seats while the Governments and its supporters held 46 seats.

These returns showed the Independent Labor party without two seats previously accredited to it.

SAVED ON ICE IN CHARLES RIVER

Spectator Uses Wits and a Ladder to Get Students Safely Out of Peril

While more than 500 persons looked on, two Tech students were rescued today from the thin ice on the Charles river at the Cambridge side near Harvard bridge.

Traffic in Memorial drive was jammed as scores of cars were parked so the occupants could watch.

A large part of the crowd gathered and looked on helplessly before the rescue work started, while the two students, fearing to go back and faced with open water between them and the shore, stood marooned.

The ice was so thin that they hardly dared move at all, and the stretch of water was too wide to jump and too cold to plunge into.

On their way across the river from Bay State rd., the two youths had several times narrowly escaped crashing through but figured it was safest to keep on going.

The rescue was finally effected by F. M. McAuliffe of 575 Main st., Watertown. He shouted to the students to do exactly as he said. He then instructed them to separate and to lie flat and edge along carefully toward the rim of the ice.

With the help of others in the crowd, McAuliffe then shoved one end of a ladder on to the ice and the youths gingerly crossed it, escaping with nothing more than wet feet. They thanked McAuliffe and left without revealing their names.

The large crowd, which lustily cheered as the rescue was completed, all started away at once and traffic was in a bad snarl for some time afterward.

U. S. REGULARS IN TENDER SPOT

Shanghai, Feb. 19, (AP)—A force of 400 American infantrymen took up what was regarded as a tender position this afternoon along the border of the Settlement, facing Chapei and touching the Chinese front on the one hand and the Japanese on the other. The new American line constitutes a solid row of machine-gun blockhouses.

The American position along a mile frontage faced directly the Chinese stand in Chapei and they were the most advanced posts on the Settlement front. They also rubbed elbows with the Japanese forces on their right along the settlement's northern boundary.

The infantrymen, patrolling the Settlement border alongside Chapei, were in one of the most delicate spots along the whole neutral front, close to the line of fire where it was almost certain some stray shells would fall in a general bombardment. The Japanese command said care would be exercised, but if misdirected shells fell in the Settlement it could not be helped.

On entering the lines, which they took over from volunteer corps and paid Russian troops, the Americans immediately began assembling machine guns, manning the blockhouses and posting sentries behind a line of sandbags supporting the blockhouse positions.

They also undertook something new in mounting machine guns on the roofs of houses immediately behind their lines. These new positions have an unobstructed view of the Chinese trenches in Chapei, which now run along behind the wrecked Shanghai-Nanking railway station, a few yards outside the Settlement boundary.

The American troops expressed keen satisfaction on taking over the new positions. "At last we are where there is likely to be some action," one of them said.

Their arrival did not cause the slightest sign of reaction inside the Japanese or Chinese lines.

The soldiers, all members of the 31st Infantry, immediately began to revive the old rollicking spirit of 1917 and 1918 by nailing up on the blockhouses signs taken from nearby destroyed buildings announcing: "ROOMS TO LET," "CABARET SHOWS—DANCING NIGHTLY—BEST MUSIC IN TOWN."

ARMIES READY FOR BATTLE

Shanghai, Feb. 19 (AP)—Chinese guns played a heavy tattoo over nerve-wracked Shanghai today in what was looked on as a prelude to battle.

The Japanese said three of their bluejackets had been killed during the bombardment. The Chinese were making hasty but elaborate preparations for the expected Japanese attack tomorrow, when their ultimatum expires.

beginning of the Japanese offensive tomorrow morning was considered virtually certain this afternoon when Gen. Uyeda said unless the Chinese had withdrawn from their front line positions at Chapei, Kiangwan and Woosung by 7 a. m. (6 p. m. E. S. T.), "the Japanese will take independent action."

"Thus far," he added, significantly, "we see no sign of a Chinese withdrawal."

There was no sign that the Chinese had any other intention than to fight it out to a finish in an elaborate system of entrenchments where they were expected to be able to make a determined stand

ATTACK DUE TONIGHT AS CHINESE STAND PAT

Both Sides Defiant and Mass Troops for Battle to a Finish

By DIXON HOSTE,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Shanghai, Feb. 19 (INS)—Wu Te-Chen, mayor of the native Chinese city of Shanghai, this evening flatly rejected the Japanese ultimatum calling for demilitarization of Shanghai, declaring that the dispute was not a local affair and that settlement should rest with the foreign offices of the two countries concerned.

Mayor Wu refused even to transmit the ultimatum officially to General Tsai-Ting-Kai, commander of the 19th route army, which has defended Shanghai against the Japanese invasion.

JAPS GIVEN ANSWER

Mayor Wu Te-Chen, delivered the Chinese reply to the Japanese ultimatum to the Japanese consul-general at 6 p. m., today.

A copy of the ultimatum, however, had previously been delivered to Tsai-Ting-Kai by Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, Japanese military commandant.

In an interview with International News Service this afternoon, Gen. Tsai-Ting-Kai said he would ignore the ultimatum, unless instructed by the central government of China to answer it.

ACCUSES JAPANESE

He had authorized Wellington Koo, Chinese Foreign Office representative in Shanghai, however, to make any reply he saw fit and sign his (Gen. Tsai-Ting-Kai's) name to it.

Couched in vigorous terms, Mayor Wu's reply declared that responsibility for any further hostilities in Shanghai must rest solely with the Japanese, "whose troops have

JAPANESE TO RUSH BIGGER ARMY ON TO SHANGHAI

ACT AS CHINESE MASS 90,000 FOR BATTLE

Tokio Still Seeks to Avoid Open War as Crisis Nears In Disputed Zone

(Copyright, 1932, Associated Press)

Tokio, Feb. 19 (AP)—Japanese government officials engaged in a series of conferences late today which observers said they believed were called to formulate tentative plans for sending heavy reinforcements to Gen. Uyeda's army at Shanghai.

Newspapers reported that Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, former Chinese president, was leading a large army to Shanghai to support the 19th Route Army, which is already there, in anticipation of the beginning of the big Japanese drive tomorrow.

90,000 CHINESE THERE

In regard to the Chinese forces massing at Shanghai, Minister of War Araki said:

"Our intelligence reports indicate that there are at present 90,000 Chinese soldiers facing our men in the Shanghai area, including Chiang's forces."

He declined to say just how strong a reinforcement Japan would send, but he explained it probably would require 10 or 15 days to put the additional units in Shanghai.

He would not say definitely that Japanese would not operate beyond the 12½-mile zone to which the Chinese army has been asked to retire. If the Chinese should attack Japanese on the borders of that zone, it might create a situation requiring a further Japanese advance, he said.

Premier Suyoshi Inukai called upon Emperor Hirohito at the Imperial Palace following a conference of selected cabinet members this afternoon. The news of Chiang Kai-Shek's reported move was reported to have made the situation at Shanghai much more serious.

SEEK TO AVERT WAR

Members of the cabinet were reported, however, to have agreed to do their best to prevent the situation from developing in such a way as to necessitate a declaration of war. Immediately after the cabinet conferences the Premier left for the palace to see the Emperor.

If the present Shanghai Japanese force should be doubled or trebled the war office was expected to name a special commander-in-chief with the full rank of general. General Uyeda is a lieutenant-general.

Officials said the evacuation area has been outlined with a view to the safety of the ships of all nations entering the port of Shanghai. It was the firm intention of the Japanese command, they asserted, not to advance beyond the 10 kilometer zone even if a Chinese refusal compels an attack.

NEGOTIATE LATER

The immediate necessity, they added, is to compel the withdrawal of the Chinese and after that there would be time to negotiate the status of the evacuated areas, with other foreign powers participating in the negotiations.

Although it was election eve, the public and officials alike gave little attention to anything except Shanghai. They awaited anxiously the results of Gen. Uyeda's ultimatum, which, they understood, might mean that the Japanese and Chinese armies would be locked in combat before election day is over.

Japan Crisis at the Polls Tomorrow

Tokio, Feb. 19 (INS)—Japan will go to the polls tomorrow in one of the most crucial elections in years to choose a new diet to replace that dissolved Jan. 21.

The election is expected to have an important bearing on Japan's Chinese policy, although economic issues are taking first place. The Seiyukai (incumbent) party, committed to a policy of firm dealing with China, hopes to gain 30 seats from the Minseito party.

encroached upon Chinese territory and attacked Chinese troops."

Japan will take the offensive against the Chinese 19th army shortly after 7 a. m. tomorrow (6 p. m., Friday, E. S. T.) if the Chinese troops fail to begin their evacuation by that time.

THE CHINESE REPLY

The points in the Chinese reply were as follows:

1—Solution of all disputes between China and Japan should properly be referred to the respective foreign offices of the two countries and not to local authorities.

2—Anti-Japanese boycotts are spontaneous, patriotic Chinese movements which local authorities are unable to restrain. Local authorities furthermore consider that just causes for popular indignation have been given by Japan.

3—Mayor Wu refuses to refer the Japanese demands to Commander Tsai-Ting-Kai, since whatever happens in Shanghai, "the responsibility is Japan's and not that of the 19th route army."

4—Responsibility for any further hostilities in Shanghai must rest solely with the Japanese, whose troops have encroached upon Chinese territory and attacked Chinese troops.

By turning the ultimatum over to Wellington Koo, Gen. Tsai-Ting-Kai automatically placed it in the hands of the Chinese National government, although he termed it "unnecessary and ridiculous."

CALLS ORDER ABSURD

The general characterized the demand for withdrawal of Chinese troops as absurd, pointing out that Japan had invaded Chinese territory and therefore had no conceivable right to order Chinese troops off their own soil.

He accused Japan of violating international law by waging war against China for 22 days without a declaration of war, and then handing an ultimatum to the nineteenth route army instead of to the National government.

The Chinese, added the Nineteenth Route Army commander, not only have no intention of withdrawing but will stand on their present lines and resist vigorously any attempt by the Japanese to advance.

"We cannot accept the Japanese ultimatum," he said. "We will have to reply with gunfire.

"The Japanese have taken Chinese territory, and now they advance peace terms. There can be no peace as long as Japanese troops are on our soil. Why should we evacuate our own land?"

Local Chinese military officers denied that Gen. Chang Kai-Shek was ready to advance upon Shanhai to attack the Japanese, although reports to the effect have been current.

EXPERTS ALARMED

Foreign observers noted with alarm that the Japanese now have abandoned the pretext of protecting the settlement in their dealings with China, and that they now have negotiated with her as with a country with which they were at war.

To back this charge that Japan now considers herself in a state of hostilities with China, foreigners pointed out that neither the Municipal Council nor the foreign consuls were notified by Japan regarding yesterday's ultimatum to Cinese leaders.

In previous negotiations with China, Japan has politely observed the international etiquette of the settlement and kept representatives of all leading powers duly informed of her activities.

Chinese officials were quick to sense this. Mayor Wu Te-Chan, in discussing why he would reject the terms of the Japanese ultimatum, declared its issuance was an absurd miscarriage of conventional diplomatic usage.

IGNORE GOVERNMENT

It was extremely odd, he said, that one nation should deliver an ultimatum to single civil and military units of another "friendly power."

The mayor's reply, as well as that of General Tsai Ting-Kai commander of the Chinese army, points out it is impossible for these two individuals to assume the responsibility of an entire nation in accepting the Japanese terms.

This can be done, the mayor said, only by the Nanking government, to which he has relayed the ultimatum, but to which none was addressed by the Japanese.

WON'T WAIT FOR TIME

Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, commander of the Japanese troops, so told International News Service today and added that he would take "my own action" if the Chinese were slow in obeying the ultimatum of withdrawal.

He has no intention of waiting until the expiration of the ultimatum at 5 p. m. (4 a. m., Saturday, E. S. T.), he said.

"It is my impression" General Uyeda declared, "that the Chinese will not commence withdrawing at that time, for even last night they dropped shells within the International Settlement.

"In no case will my troops take offensive moves against the Chinese army prior to 7 a. m. Saturday (6 p. m. Friday E. S. T.) But if I still see the Nineteenth within its present lines at that time, then I must take my own action.

UP TO CHINESE

"While I make no promises to restrict my military activities within the 20-kilometer zone, I intend to confine myself to that area unless the Chinese force me to do otherwise.

"I have been informed that Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek's bodyguards are moving nearer to Shanghai, but I don't know whether or not they intend to reinforce the 19th route army.

"So long as they don't menace Shanghai, they won't come within the Japanese ultimatum. Here I would emphasize the fact that our enemy is a force which menaces peace and order in Shanghai; it's not the Chinese government, it's not the whole of the Chinese army, and certainly it's not the Chinese people."

"It's not even the entire 19th route army," Gen. Uyeda continued. "It is only part of that body. And any section of it which does not threaten the International Settlement is not our enemy.

AMERICANS ARE URGED TO QUIT THE WAR ZONE

U. S. Consul-General Issues a Warning to U. S. Residents in Shanghai

Shanghai, Feb. 19 (AP)—Hundreds of American residents who live in the most dangerous spots in Shanghai, faced with the prospect of a battle between the Chinese and Japanese armies tomorrow, were advised by United States Consul Edwin S. Cunningham today to evacuate these areas for points of greater safety either tonight or tomorrow morning.

Cunningham joined with the British consul-general in issuing the warning to those who lived in the Hongkew and Yangtzepoo districts, where the likelihood of Japanese or Chinese shells landing was thought to be greatest.

Previously consular officials considered the possibility of evacuating women and children from Shanghai, but it was finally decided not to take this step.

Between 100 and 200 Americans in the chief danger zone began to leave during the day, following the consul-general's advice. Officials laid plans for evacuating women and children from the city if the situation grows worse.

BIG JAP FORCE IS REQUIRED

Washigton, Feb. 19 (AP)—Military experts in Washington doubt whether Japan will make an immediate frontal mass attack on the Chinese forces at Shanghai if Gen. Tsai Tin-Kai fails to withdraw in compliance with the Japanese ultimatum.

The Chinese have a line between 12 and 14 miles long extending from the international settlement to beyond the Woosung forts. They are thoroughly entrenched and protected by wire entanglements. Furthermore the terrain chiefly is flooded ground, so muddy that trucks and talks mire and make slow progress.

MORE TROOPS NEEDED

Japanese bluejackets and Japanese soldiers alike have made little headway in their attacks, the Chinese having shown remarkable strength and discipline. The Chinese Nineteenth route army, which originally had 19,000 or 20,000 soldiers, is now said to have been recruited up to 25,000 and reinforcements of about 40,000 are reported in readiness between Shanghai and Nanking.

In these reinforcements are included some of the old organizations of Yuan Shih-Kai, the greatest military genius of modern China.

To oppose the Chinese strength, the Japanese are now reported to have about 25,000 soldiers and 4000 bluejackets in Shanghai. Consequently military tacticians are doubtful whether they will risk a general attack until reinforced. And some of the best informed military men in Washington who know the Shanghai terrain think that even with considerable reinforcements the Japanese will not attempt a frontal attack.

MAY CIRCLE CHINESE

In the Great War the Allies would have thrown at least 120,000 men against a front as long as that the Chinese have at Shanghai.

It is regarded as a possibility that the Japanese will not move from their present bases, but will land troops north of Woosung forts on the Yangtse river, and move along the rear of the Chinese, cutting off reinforcements. Such a movement would probably make the pressure against the International Settlement worse, by directing any Chinese retreat against the settlement boundary.

If Japs Back Up 12 Miles, Chinese Will Go, Too

Nanking, China, Feb. 19 (AP)—Instructions to reject parts of Japan's ultimatum and to accept others only conditionally have been sent by the national government to Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai and Mayor Wu Teh-Chen at Shanghai, it was learned tonight on excellent authority.

They are to tell the Japanese commander that the 19th route army will withdraw 12 miles from Shanghai, as Japan demands, only if the Japanese force will retire to an equal distance.

They will flatly refuse the demand to dismantle the forts at Woosung and Paoshan.

It was thought unlikely that these 11th hour negotiations would serve to stave off the expected Japanese attack.

CHINESE SCORE VICTORY AT GENEVA

League Council Overrides Japan and Decides to Call a Special Session of Assembly

By FREDERIC K. ABBOTT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Geneva, Feb. 19 (INS)—China won an important victory when the League of Nations Council of Twelve decided today to call an extraordinary session of the League Assembly to consider the Sino-Japanese conflict, despite energetic protests from Japan.

The call will be issued at a public session of the council this evening, but the date has not yet been decided upon.

The council of 12 (the league council minus Japan and China) accepted the report of its juridical committee which swept aside the Japanese objections. No ground could be found, the committee said, for rejecting China's request that the assembly be summoned.

Hint Chinese Told to Fire Into Settlement

Tokyo, Feb. 19 (INS)—The foreign office announced today that Chinese forces in Shanghai are being encouraged to fire directly upon the International Settlement as a result of the reported stand of the American State Department holding Japan responsible for any loss of American life or property caused by either side as long as Japan uses the settlement as a base for military operations.

Washington reports denied that Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson was contemplating a note to Tokyo to this effect, but the foreign office clung to an official dispatch from Ambassador Debuchi in Washington asserting it.

TWO GREAT ARMIES READY

and inflict heavy losses on the attacking forces.

CHINESE DEFIANT

The bombardment was interpreted by the Japanese army officers as a gesture of defiance. They said the Chinese guns hurled shells over the Japanese consulate and the flagship Idzumo in the river during the night. Artillery fire also was exchanged at Kiangwan, focal point of the battle preparations.

The only effect the Japanese ultimatum seemed to have had on the Chinese soldiers was to speed up their program of strengthening defenses and increase the number of sentries along the road.

For miles behind the Chinese lines the countryside bristled with defenses. The troops continued to "stay put" in the line all the way from Chapel to Woosung. Machine guns were being placed in position at frequent intervals.

GRAVES ARE GUN RESTS

The entire area is dotted with grave mounds which rapidly were being converted into machine gun nests. Many of the shallow trenches are habitable for only brief periods because they hold water to a considerable depth. Many bridges were converted into movable structures, well protected by machine gun fortifications. Most of them can be easily removed if a retreat should be necessary. Sandbag machine gun nests dotted the roads at frequent intervals and there was every indication that the Chinese were determined to make the Japanese pay dearly for every foot of ground gained.

If any doubt remained that the Japanese military authorities were preparing for "something big" it was quickly dispelled by a visit today to their headquarters in the Kungda Mill in the Yangtzepoo district. The offices there formerly occupied by bookkeepers and clerks, were filled with uniformed men poring over maps, drawing plans, and discussing problems of strategy for the big offensive they regarded as inevitable.

PROTECT AIR FLEET

The cotton spinning machinery was stilled and soldiers bunks were placed about the great looms. A number of Chinese mill workers still remained inside the enclosure. They served as orderlies for Japanese officers. Motorcycle couriers constantly rushed in and out of the gates with messages from the front.

Lieut.-Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda conferred constantly with his aides. In front of his quarters was a string of expensive American automobiles.

Machine guns were being placed in pits at intervals of about 50 yards in a line entirely surrounding the new Japanese airdrome. Numerous sandbag redoubts were built at the corners of the field and along the banks of the Whangpoo River.

Soldiers were busy on the canals nearby, testing a new type of pontoon bridge, apparently to be used in crossing the network of creeks in the area where the attack was expected to take place. The atmosphere was electric with anticipation of the zero hour.

JAPANESE FEVERISH

The activity was most feverish in the Japanese areas. The Chinese, although they were busy, seemed to have been ready for days and to be now merely carrying on.

I visited General Tsai Ting-Kai, Chinese commander, just before the lines were closed in expectation of events to come. As I prepared to depart he said: "You probably will be the last correspondent I shall see for we are closing the lines to Shanghai."

He gave me a card in his own handwriting ordering the sentries to permit me to pass into Shanghai. "This will get you into town," he said, "but it won't let you return."

Although apparently on the eve of great events, General Tsai was pleasant and spared his time bountifully. He was silent, however, as to details of what the Chinese Army was doing. As I departed he called cheerily "good luck to you."

"I will fight to the last inch of ground and the last bullet," he had said shortly before. "We are within our rights within our own country."

He said reports that he was suffering from a shortage of ammunition and supplies were false. "A good supply of everything is coming," he said, "and we are confident we are prepared for any emergency."

Two companies of Japanese infantry, a detachment of cavalry and a line of motor trucks were hauling ammunition and other supplies into the Japanese positions along the eastern side of Chapel during the afternoon, strengthening their stand in the vicinity of Hongkew Park.

Science Must Create New Jobs, Says Marconi

Rome, Feb. 19—The curtailment of employment through modern inventions must give way to the creation of new jobs through science for the unemployed.

Guglielmo Marconi

This is the meat of the observations of Guglielmo Marconi, who treats on the present economic crisis in the current issue of a scientific magazine.

Science, says Marconi, is capable of aiding man in his fight to overcome difficulties attached to shortage of jobs, and will do so, he adds. By improving the quality of goods and making life more comfortable without depriving man of his right to work, the difficulties will be overcome, Marconi says.

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO HAVE TO WEAR SHOES LIKE THESE ON A DAY LIKE THIS?

Nobody wears shoes like these? You're wrong! If you didn't hold your head quite so high you might see them in the icy streets, for they're worn by a man who works for the city welfare department to earn food for his family. He's glad when there's snow on the ground, so the stones won't cut his feet!

These are museum exhibits? You're wrong again! Another city welfare worker wears them—proof that a man can get too close to Mother Earth for the good of his sole. These are well ventilated, but that isn't even funny. You've thrown away shoes twice as good as these. You've got shoes now, that you never wear, that are better. This man will be glad to get them.

Between soles and half-soles and no soles at all, and the soul of a man striving against bitter odds to earn food for his wife and children, there is a kinship close. The uppers of these shoes are slightly worn but they'll have to do, in bitter cold, in snow or rain—unless you provide a better pair—till next summer. In the summer time a man may go barefooted with discretion.

That right shoe there is in two parts, like a continued story—but it's a story without a laugh in it; it's all drama and tragedy and pride ground under the heel of necessity. That's one heel Oliver Wendell Holmes didn't have in mind when he wrote, "Good to the heels the well-worn slipper feels." Can't you do better for this man's feet than he can do for himself?

The sole of this man's shoe gapes like an open mouth—symbol, perhaps, of the gnawing hunger beneath his tightly-drawn belt. It's hard to say that these are shoes at all and yet they must be, for they are on feet. The sole flaps when he walks. A man's soul, without hope, may do the same. If you give him shoes your heart will be warmer than his feet.

BISHOP CANNON HIDES BEHIND A WOMAN---TINKHAM ACCUSES

DARES BISHOP TO BARE FUND IN COURT

Washington, Feb. 19—Bishop James Cannon "did not dare" to submit himself to a cross-examination under oath concerning the funds he received for political purposes in 1928, Representative Tinkham (R.), of Massachusetts, declared on the floor of the House in challenging the churchman to arrange an open court trial of his $50,000 slander suit against Tinkham.

The Southern Methodist Bishop brought the suit on June 3, 1931, in the District of Columbia Supreme Court after Tinkham charged that Bishop Cannon was a "shameless violator of the Federal Corrupt Practices act."

REVIEWS CASE

Justice James Proctor several days ago sustained the clergyman's demurrer to an indictment alleging violation of this act during the 1928 campaign and the government has given notice of an appeal.

Tinkham continued:

"There is still a way, however, for this House and the country to learn the real and damning facts in this case . . .

"In order completely to expose this spurious self-designated moral leader and ecclesiastical whitened sepulcher, I challenge him to try his suit against me, and I hereby call upon him through his counsel to arrange with the counsel representing me for an early trial at this term of court before it adjourns at the end of June."

BISHOP ASSAILED

Tinkham opened his remarks, made during general debate on an appropriation bill, with the statement:

"I regard it as my public duty not only to this House but to the country to review at this time the facts in the criminal case of the notorious Bishop James Cannon.

"Bishop Cannon, according to the press, apparently will escape confinement at the federal penitentiary at Atlanta by employing the same methods invoked by notorious gunmen and professional criminals, namely, by making a technical objection to the criminal indictment.

"The sum total of his objection to the indictment, which was sustained by the court, was that it did not allege as a fact that Miss Burroughs, treasurer of the political committee of which Bishop Cannon was chairman, knew that Bishop Cannon had received from E. C. Jameson the funds which were not reported under the federal corrupt practices act.

"It is unusual even for gunmen and criminals to seek shelter behind a woman."

PUT YOUR OLD SHOES TO WORK FOR JOBLESS!

Have you a pair of unemployed shoes?

The Boston Evening American today evolved a method of putting them to work.

They are needed — if you can spare them—for a worthy cause.

Hundreds of unemployed men who earn their city welfare allowance, go about the streets every day with shoes that offer little or no protection.

SHOES IMPORTANT

Of course the Salvation Army Volunteers of America, veteran groups and other organizations, do yeoman work in shoeing the unshodden, but they can't take care of all the needy.

The sum allotted the welfare department by the city does not include an amount to protect the feet of workers from the cold.

Yet they work on for their allowance. They don't seek charity. But they want work.

The shoe item is mighty important to them who must trudge the frozen streets.

SEND THEM IN

You could help to relieve anxiety on that item by a perusal of your closets for old shoes, for good shoes, perhaps a bit out of style. Cold feet are not stylish feet.

But they need not even be in perfect repair. The welfare department can take care of that.

Send the shoes to the City Welfare Department at 43 Hawkins st., Boston, or to the Overseers of Public Welfare in Chardon st., West End.

They will welcome them—and so will the men who want to work for the relief the city gives.

CAPONE'S PALATIAL MIAMI HOME TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION BY U. S.

$57000 OWED TO GOVERNMENT IN BACK TAXES

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

Copyright, 1932, by International News Service.

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 19 (INS)—Al Capone's luxurious $250,000 home at Palm Island, Miami, overlooking the blue waters of Biscayne Bay, may soon be sold by the government at auction to satisfy a $57,000 Federal tax lien.

This inforamtion was dropped today by a government representative who came here to check up on the taxes accruing from the Resenbloom-Godwin boxing contest in Daytona Wednesday night. He said he expected to receive orders soon to sell the property.

A fight to prevent the sale of the property is anticipated. The home was bought in the name of Mrs. Mae Capone, wife of the imprisoned gang chieftain.

WIFE AND BOY THERE.

Mrs. Capone, her 14-year-old boy, "Sonny," and John Capone, 29-year-old brother of Al, are now living in the palatial home at Miami.

Al Capone, who last October was sentenced to serve 11 years for violation of the income tax law, is now in the Cook County (Illinois) jail. After he serves 10 years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, he must do time in Cook County jail for another year.

The Capone home in Miami is one of the show places of Florida. In recent years Capone was a regular winter visitor there. The ground alone cost $40,000.

SPENT $200,000

Capone spent thousands of dollars remodeling the place. He constructed a wall around the premises, a garage apartment, a magnificent bathing pool and a boat dock, among other things.

The interior of the home was elaborately furnished. Capone took a personal interest in the interior decorations. His friends say he invested more than $200,000 in the place.

STUFF 2 SLAIN INTO AUTO

New York, Feb. 19 (AP)—The bodies of two men, both of whom had been shot to death, were found today stuffed in the rumble seat of a parked automobile in West 114th st.

The cover of the seat had been forced down to conceal the bodies, and blood streaming from the machine attracted a pedestrian, who notified police.

One body was slumped down on the rumble seat and the other was on the floor. Neither man appeared to be older than 28.

Pockets of the men's clothing had been turned inside out and there was nothing that might lead to identification.

An ambulance surgeon said the men had been dead only a short time.

ARMED BANDITS HOLD UP GIRL

When two gunmen walked into her father's variety store at 6 Hartland st., Dorchester, Marie Sheehan, 18, thought they were "kidding," and said so.

"Like hell!" roared one of the masked men. "Stick 'em up!"

She reached for the ceiling, while they rifled the till of $10, but she kept her wits about her. She not only gave police a description of the bandits, but reported that they had two confederates in a car outside and gave the license plate numbers, all of which she saw through the window.

"Put a foot outside this door, and we'll plug you!" the holdup men warned, as they ran from the place.

Jacoby on Bridge Team With Mrs. Culbertson

New York, Feb. 19 (AP)—Oswald Jacoby, storm center of the great Lenz-Culbertson contract bridge match, will be on Mrs. Ely Culbertson's side in championship play next week instead of against her.

One team entered in a competition for the New York city team of four championship consists of Theodore A. Lightner, Mrs. Culbertson, Jacoby and Mrs. J. C. Thaw. Lightner and Mrs. Culbertson will be partners. Culbertson himself is in a hospital and has retired from championship play.

Another team seeking the city crown consists of P. Hal Sims, Mrs. Sims, Waldemar von Zedtwitz and Mrs. Mary Clement. Sims is an ace of the "Four Horsemen," who have a record for tournament laurels.

8 EVENTS ON CARD

The other members are Jacoby, Willard S. Karn and David Burnstine. Von Zedtwitz was one of Culbertson's partners in the match with Sidney S. Lenz.

Eight events will attract several hundred stars from various parts of the country to the Hotel Roosevelt for morning, afternoon and night play in the eastern bridge championships, beginning Monday and ending Friday.

The greatest number of entrants has been attracted by contract pair championship, in which Jacoby will play with Sims, Karn with Von Zedtwitz and Burnstine with Howard Schenken, another partner of Culbertson against Lenz.

"FOUR HORSEMEN" LINEUP

The "Four Horsemen" will be together in the team of four championship. Lenz will be with Jacoby's successor in the Culbertson match, Commander Winfield Liggett, Jr., C. E. Hepburn and Sir Derrick Wernher. Culbertson honors will be upheld by Theodore A. Lightner, Von Zedtwitz, Michael Gottlieb and Schenken.

The "Horsemen" also will try to win the only auction event, one for teams of four. In this event Lenz will be with Liggett again and also George Reith and Mrs. R. B. Fuller.

BOSTON TRAIN 2 HOURS LATE

One hundred and twenty-five passengers were held up nearly two hours today when the New Haven crack express, the "New Englander," from Philadelphia to Boston, broke a drawbar in Bridgeport, Ct., station at 3 a. m.

A station mail truck was spilled on the track as the fast train was approaching. Seeing the mail bags cluttering the rails, the engineer put on all brakes hard.

The train stopped in time, but broke a drawbar, part of the mechanism joining two pullman cars. By the time the bar was renewed and the cars recoupled the train, scheduled to arrive at 7:52 a. m. in Boston, was almost two hours late.

Two Firemen Felled 40 Ft. by Hose Line

Woonsocket, R. I., Feb. 19 (AP)—Two firemen plunged from a ladder 40 feet to the ground and suffered serious injuries today while fighting a fire in an unoccupied nine-tenement building that caused damage estimated at $20,000.

Fireman Louis P. Sutherland, high on a ladder against the burning three-story structure, was swept off by a powerful stream of water. In falling, he struck Lieut. John J. Skiffington just below him, and both men dropped to the ground.

Sutherland suffered a dangerous injury to his forehead and Skiffington received a possible concussion of the brain.

Melrose Man Dies

Havana, Feb. 19—Harry F. Leonard, 68, of Melrose, Mass., died of a heart attack in his hotel here.

PLENTY OF RUM, BUT NO WATER

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 19 (AP)—The motor vessel Whichone, which sailed from St. Pierre three months ago bound for "Nowhere" with a liquor cargo, has crept into port with a crew that went without solid food for 16 days.

Customs officers sealed the liquor holds when the vessel entered the harbor last night, but Capt. Chesley Anderson and his crew were too eager to eat to pay much attention to that.

A motor gave out while the Whichone was far at sea. Later the fuel feeding the remaining motor was exhausted. The water supply was used up and the larder soon was empty. The liquor that choked the hold was no substitute for either.

The craft was 91 days out of St. Pierre when it made this port.

G. WASHINGTON 'UNCHRISTIAN'

Millburn, N. J., Feb. 19 (INS)—The clergy has joined the literati in the crusade against the sanctification of historical heroes, beginning with George Washington.

The Rev. Romaine F. Bateman, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who refused to officiate at a patriotic service in honor of the first President, has rejuvenated the debunking movement begun some years ago by Rupert Hughes, biographer of Washington.

In forbidding the Junior Order of United American Mechanics to hold services in his church on Sunday, Dr. Bateman has come out boldly for clarification of issues. Washington, and Abraham Lincoln, too, for that matter, were "un-Christian," he contends.

He admits they were statesmen, but sees no reason to credit them with all the virtues in the world. His prejudice against Washington was because he "drank and gambled."

The snubbed organization will call on Dr. Bateman to retract his views.

Turned Down Relief Fund, on Carpet Before Mayor

Six policemen and five firemen in Everett were closeted with Mayor O'Neill for half an hour last night and then hurriedly left the office without making any comment to newspapermen. The mayor had called them before him upon learning that they were the only members of the two departments who had declined to contribute to the welfare work fund.

PILOT REFUSES TO REVEAL HIS DESTINATION

Old Orchard, Me., Feb. 19 (US)—Mystery today surrounded the destination of the Fokker plane which N. C. Brown of New York is to bring to this resort for a long flight.

According to Capt. Harry M. Jones, who has a hangar at the beach, Brown said he would come here with his machine Sunday and probably take off at once if weather conditions are favorable.

PERFECT FOR TAKEOFF

The beach never was in better condition for a hopoff, Jones said today. About 1000 gallons of gasoline are awaiting Brown here.

Brown, a youthful test pilot, is virtually unknown in aviation circles. He resides in Keyport, N. J., and was formerly employed by an aircraft corporation. He prepared a secondhand single-motored plane for the long flight, but refused to reveal his destination.

MAY FLY OCEAN

There were rumors he also had established a fuel depot at Harbor Grace.

Some fliers said he would probably fly to South America, while a few believed he intends a transatlantic hop.

Wise Cheat the Law, Says Expert

Baltimore, Feb. 19 (INS)—Stupid law-breakers are the only ones apprehended, yet their mental age of about 13½ years compares favorably with that of the general population, Dr. Amos T. Baker, psychiatrist at Sing Sing prison, told the American Orthopsychiatric Association today.

"The forger is the highest mental type of criminal, while the murderer is the lowest, according to the violent nature of the crime," Dr. Baker said. "However, the majority of prison inmates are feeble-minded.

"Crime is based largely on ethical background and the majority of crimes are committed in the cities, where there is less respect for the law than in the rural communities.

"The respect for law and order is not inborn. A man's natural instinct is to preserve himself. A wide belief that all murderers are insane is wrong. I don't believe it.

"As an example, take Francis 'Two-Gun' Crowley. I examined Crowley thoroughly and I can say without hesitation that he was not crazy.

"The American prison system does not reform criminals. It makes them more vicious. Such things as football and baseball merely amuse the prisoners for the time, but have no lasting effect.

"What the remedy is I don't know. We'll have to keep on studying the problem."

CARDOZO HIT AS 'TWEED SCION'

Washington, Feb. 19 (INS)—A bitter attack on the judicial record of Judge Benjamin N. Cardoza, chief justice of the New York State court of appeals, named to succeed Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes on the Supreme Court bench, was started before a Senate judiciary sub-committee today by William H. Anderson, general secretary of the American Proestant Alliance.

"Cardozo is the son of Judge Albert Cardozo, one of the notorious 'Tweed ring judges,' who, Dennis Tilden Lynch, in his recent authoritative book, 'Boss Tweed,' says,, was owned, body and soul, by Tweed," Anderson charged.

CO-EDS IN CORSAGE FIGHT

Court Asked to Enjoin Prexy's Order

Salt Lake, Utah, Feb. 19 (AP)—Protected by injunction, Utah University co-eds hope to wear corsages to a junior prom tonight.

George Thomas, university president, banned corsages in the interest of economy.

Officers of the Utah Floral Association and other merchants announced they would seek an injunction in district court today to restrain the president or his agents from removing corsages from co-eds or ejecting those who come so adorned.

Four co-eds signed the injunction petition which describes the president's edict as "unreasonable, arbitrary and something which cannot be construed as reasonably designed for a legitimate purpose."

British Farmers Ask Meat, Wool Tariff

London, Feb. 19 (AP)—British farmers have demanded a 10 per cent tariff on meat and wool under the Government's new tariff measure.

Sir John Gilmour, minister of agriculture, stated in the House of Commons recently that wheat meat and wool would be the only agricultural products exempt from the new duty. Wheat is being dealt with in a separate bill which guarantees the British farmer 15 per cent of the domestic market, at a fixed price.

18 NEW FIRMS IN BOSTON

The establishment of 18 new manufacturing firms, ranging in scope and character from confectionery to range oil burners, is announced by the bureau of commercial and industrial affairs of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Of the new firms, 11 started operations during January and the others the latter part of last year.

In addition to the new industries, the bureau found that 17 existing manufacturing firms had reported expansion, which, in a number of cases, increased opportunities for employment.

Most of the new firms are located in Boston, though other cities and towns in the Metropolitan district are represented, including Lynn, Waltham, Canton and Everett.

ROOSEVELT MEN WIN FIRST SKIRMISH IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Concord, N. H., Feb. 19—Supporters of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt won the opening skirmish of a fight with friends of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith for a pledged delegation from New Hampshire to the Democratic national convention as the filing period for delegation candidates closed here last night.

Following an all-day "harmony" meeting headed by Robert Jackson, national committeeman and secretary of the Democratic national committee, the Roosevelt supporters filed a complete slate of 12 delegates and as many delegates at large. As a result of the Jackson parley, threatened contests in the Roosevelt ranks were eliminated.

The Smith forces were not so fortunate. In the final dash to get under the wire of the official closing hour, the Smith slate was overcrowded. To the surprise of everyone, a check-up developed that contests between Smith-pledged candidates had been created in every group seeking places as voting delegates.

The Roosevelt slate showed both a geographical and racial balance. The Smith-for-President ticket was a top-heavy affair, with 15 of the 17 candidates for delegate at large and alternate delegate at large giving their residence as Manchester.

Among the Roosevelt pledged candidates are Robert Murchie of Concord, former national committeeman, and Robert J. Gould of Newport, chairman of the New Hampshire Democratic State committee.

SMITH DELEGATES

Nine Smith-pledged candidates for delegate-at-large are in the field. Only eight will be elected. They are: Joseph A. Lazermarsh of Lebanon; James A. Broderick, Arthur L. Prince, Joseph M. McDonough, William C. McCarthy, John T. O'Dowd, Maurice F. Devine, Samuel J. Dearborn and Frank J. Connor, all of Manchester. Alternates are: James F. Tonery, Mary Conner, Alice Farnham, George Francoeur, Alfred Duval, Philip Sheridan and Johanna Tobin, all of Manchester, and Hugh Whaling of Keene.

DISTRICT DELEGATES

First district delegates pledged to Smith, with only two to be elected, are: Delegates-at-large, Wilfred J. Boisclair of Manchester, James J. Powers of Manchester and Herve Taillefer of Allenstown; alternates, Thomas F. Sheehan of Manchester and Henry Blais of Manchester; second district Smith men with two to be elected are: Delegates-at-large Alvin A. Lucier of Nashua, Jerre J. Haggerty of Nashua and James J. Gannon of Concord; alternates, Donat Corriveau and William F. Sweeney, both of Nashua.

ROOSEVELT TICKET

The Roosevelt pledged ticket follows: Delegates-at-large, Jeremiah J. Doyle, Nashua; Timothy F. O'Connor, Manchester; Lewis H. Wilkinson, Laconia; James B. Whalen, Manchester; Allie J. Connor, Manchester; Ovide J. Coulombe, Berlin; Henri T. Ledoux, Nashua; Arthur J. Rutledge, Portsmouth.

Alternate delegates at large pledged to Roosevelt—Frederic E. Small, Rochester; Samuel T. Ladd, Portsmouth; Benjamin F. Adams, Derry; Hamilton F. Henry, Manchester; Alfred F. Fortin, Manchester; Miss Ruth Ralph, Franklin; Edward P. Bickford, Manchester; Michael O'Malley, Somersworth.

DISTRICT DELEGATES

First district delegates pledged to Roosevelt—Peter M. Gagne, Somersworth; John S. Hurley, Manchester. Alternates—Wilfred G. Chevrette, Manchester; Frank J. Grimes, Dover. Second district—Robert E. Earley, Nashua; Robert C. Murchie, Concord. Alternates—Robert J. Gould, Newport; Frank M. Richardson, Littleton.

PLEDGED TO HOOVER

To complete uncontested Republican delegates, all pledged to President Hoover, follows: At large—Governor John G. Winant, Concord; U. S. Senator George H. Moses, Concord; former Governor Huntley N. Spaulding, Rochester; Mrs. Arthur E. Moreau, Manchester; John R. McLane, Manchester; Mrs. Elwin L. Page, Concord; and State Senator E. Maude Ferguson of Bristol.

Alternates at large—William J. Britton, Wolfeboro; Eliot A. Carter, Nashua; Clarence M. Damon, Fitzwilliam; Ellsworth Rollins, Laconia; Benjamin H. Orr, Concord; Robert M. Burroughs, Manchester; Bernard B. Chase, Plymouth.

First district — Arthur J. Connor, Exeter; Jesse Doe, Rollinsford. Alternates—Robert W. Greenaway, Dover; Raymond A. Norris, Manchester.

ELY AND CURLEY LINE UP FOR N. H. DUEL

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Manchester, Feb. 19—New Hampshire may be made the duelling ground of Massachusetts politics and the Nation's as well in this combat between Alfred E. Smith and Franklin D. Roosevelt for President of the United States.

Mayor Curley, I learn privately, is to be urged to come here and sound the tocsin for Roosevelt.

His coming, if he accepts, will be a direct challenge to Governor Joseph B. Ely, who has already accepted the request to address the great Smith rally for March 1, exactly one week before the New Hampshire election of delegates to the national convention.

CHALLENGE TO ELY

With the governor of New England's most populous state and the mayor of New England's greatest metropolis leading the attack for their rival candidates, the dogs of war would be unleashed all along the line.

Ely and Curley campaigning against each other in New Hampshire would be the equivalent of Ely and Curley campaigning against each other in neighboring Massachusetts, their home grounds.

When and if they start to fight it out here, it can be safely assumed that Curley will carry the war against the Walsh-Ely faction in the Bay State.

Walsh and Ely stand pledged to Smith. They have no other or second choice. They have drifted away from Roosevelt, slowly but surely. Curley pledged himself to Roosevelt. He has been left off the "official" slate of delegates already drawn by their political strategist, Chairman Frank J. Donahue of the Democratic State Committee. There is intense rivalry between them. Everybody knows it. Most everybody is afraid to mention it lest the semblance of Democratic party harmony be ruffled.

Here in New Hampshire the Roosevelt leaders estimate that Mayor Curley's reputation for good oratory would pack the house and might tear some support from Smith. Ely has the prestige of his governorship, and he has already registered favorably with local Democrats by his tour of the lower end of the district in Congressman Rogers' successful campaign against the Republican ex-Gov. John H. Bartlett.

JACKSON HEADS FIGHT

Ely and Curley are the big aces which the contesting New Hampshire Democrats hope to draw to their own hands. If it plunges them into a battle which will carry into the Bay State, that is Mr. Ely's and Mr. Curley's hunt, these New Hampshire Democrats figure. It will be no skin off their shins.

The New Hampshire primary contest between Smith and Roosevelt will be decided on March 8. Being the first major battle in which the New Yorkers engage, its consequences may be far-reaching. Smith and Roosevelt both know this. Any inference that they are unaware of the possibly disastrous results and any assumption that they are engaged in a mimic warfare are dissipated by the facts I have learned here.

The Smith-pledged delegates got into the fight here because Smith wanted them to get in. The word was brought to this state by John Curtin at the time Smith went from New York to Boston to address the Democratic victory dinner. Curtin is a native of Manchester who has made good in the big city and he is a very intimate pal of the happy warrior.

Ely was urged to come to this city and speak for Smith and the Smith pledged delegates, not by the New Hampshire delegates themselves but by the Smith campaign managers in New York. The man on the other end of the phone is understood to have been Frank Hague, of New Jersey, the outstanding political figure in that state and the captain of the Smith movement for President.

The Roosevelt delegates were put into the contest in New Hampshire under the aegis of Robert H. Jackson, secretary of the Democratic national committee, and with the immediate approval of Roosevelt himself.

SEVEN MAY QUIT

Jackson is in close touch with Governor Roosevelt, with his campaign manager, Jim Farley, of New York, and with his son, "Young Jim" Roosevelt. Jackson was the first to know that the rumor that Roosevelt had been deserted by Colonel House was without foundation. And he was careful to let everybody know it.

Roosevelt and Farley were advised to let Massachusetts go to Smith by default because of his popularity there. They first consented to that advice, but now seem ready to take up cudgels against Smith there. Smith, in turn, was advised of the great efforts already made in behalf of Roosevelt in this state. But he decided to make the contest against Roosevelt here as Roosevelt seems to have decided to make the contest against him in Massachusetts.

All these signs point to the tremendous influence which the New Hampshire contest may exert upon their candidacies and ambitions despite the fact that New Hampshire will have but eight votes in the convention.

The last minute development of the campaign was a hurried conference in which Jackson endeavored to prevail upon seven of the Roosevelt-pledged delegates to retire from the field. Fifteen are in for the eight seats.

Garner Can Unite All Party Factions, Says McAdoo

My JOSEPH TIMMONS

Los Angeles, Feb. 19 (US)—William Gibbs McAdoo in a formal statement has unqualifiedly indorsed Speaker John N. Garner for the Democratic nomination for President.

"Under Garner all elements of the party should be able to unite," said McAdoo. "In that case, his election would be certain."

The declaration of the former Secretary of the Treasury of the Woodrow Wilson war-time cabinet takes its place at once as the day's most sensational piece of political news, one far-reaching in its influence, nationwide in its furtherance of the popular demand for Garner's nomination.

McAdoo, outstanding figure that he was in the period of American participation in the World War, one of the two principals in the memorable deadlock of the national convention of 1924, has been constantly mentioned as a possible nominee this year. Also, McAdoo has been named as a possible candidate for senator from California.

With a loyal following that extends into every state, McAdoo's declaration for Garner doubtless will bring into the camp established by the friends of the Texan, prominent members of the party all over the country. Many of the Democratic leaders in California are with McAdoo in enthusiastic support of Garner.

ASSURES ACCEPTANCE

Preceded by the statement issued last Tuesday by Senators Morris Sheppard and Tom Connally of Texas, appealing to the nation to join in the movement to nominate Garner, it may be regarded as final and convincing evidence that the Texas statesman will not decline the role of candidate for nomination if the enthusiasm of the nation's democracy drafts him for it.

Following is the statement given out by McAdoo:

"I have received so many inquiries as to my attitude toward the forthcoming Democratic presidential nomination that I take this method of answering them.

"I favor John N. Garner, speaker of the House of Representatives.

"During the six years that I was Secretary of the Treasury I had, of necessity, close official relations with the ways and means committee of the House, of which Mr. Garner was a leading member. I came, therefore, to know him intimately and to have the opportunity to judge, under the severe test of complicated problems, the quality of his mind and the measure of his ability.

"I was greatly impressed by his sound judgment, by his broad comprehension of political, social and economic problems, by his integrity—moral and intellectual—and by his high character and practical ideals. His elevation to the speakership was not a matter of chance, but a recognition of 29 years of able and distinguished service in the House of Representatives.

"Mr. Garner has unusual knowledge, acquired by hard work and experience, of the problems of government. He would bring to the presidency just the equipment that is sorely needed to direct the affairs of the people of the United States in these extraordinary times.

FOR COMMON GOOD

"Moreover, Mr. Garner is not involved in any party schisms that threaten success on election day. He is beyond the reach of those sinister and subtle influences which work unceasingly against the interests of the masses of the people. He appeals to those elements in our national life which need a leader who understands their problems, whose sympathies are with them because he does understand them, and who, because of heredity and environment, is one of the people himself.

"He will know how to use the executive power to promote the common good and to suppress favoritism and extravagance and the flagrant forces of privilege and corruption which have brought the country to its present unfortunate condition.

"Under Garner all elements of the party should be able to unite. In that case, his election would be certain."

25 Garner Clubs Are Formed in Pennsylvania

Pittsburgh, Feb. 19 (US)—A "John N. Garner-for-President" move got under way in Pennsylvania today, with over 25 clubs to be organized immediately.

Frederick Tolman, Jr., local supporter of the Texas Representative and Speaker of the House, plans to organize other Garner clubs by sending galloping chargers, bearing 1932 model Paul Reveres, to every nook and corner of the State. The "Paul Reveres" will be taken to the Chicago convention, too.

Oil Now Brought to Mexico City Through 300-Mile Pipeline

Mexico City, Feb. 19 (AP)—Mexico City's first oil pipeline was formally inaugurated today when oil began to flow through the 300-mile-long line which connects lofty Mexico City with sea level petroleum sources.

The line has been called the highest in the world. It passes over moutains more than 9000 feet high. Mexico City is 7400 feet above sea level.

This oil is brought to the suburb of Atzcapotzalco, where a large refinery has been erected by the British Eagle Oil Company. The line starts at Palma Sola, near Tuxpan, state of Vera Cruz. Its capacity is from 1200 to 1500 cubic meters of petroleum daily.

Miss Marion G. Porter, former stenographer for Eaton & McKnight, was also scheduled to testify.

Judge Roscoe Walsworth of the Chelsea District Court, law office associate of Edwin T. McKnight, principal owner of the Industrial Bank, was called before the grand jury yesterday and spent more than a half hour with the investigating body. He was called to explain his connection with Standard Shares, Inc., of which he was president for a brief time.

Among those called to testify today are John E. Eaton, law partner of McKnight; his son, John E. Eaton, Jr.; Andrew Highlands, secretary to the Public Utilities Commission; William L. Broomfield, one-time president of Standard Shares, and Miss Vera G. Stanton, stenographer in the McKnight law office.

GIRL COLLAPSES AT SENTENCE

Miss Gladys Furlong of Jamaica Plain collapsed in the United States District Court when Judge James A. Lowell sent her to the House of Correction, at Worcester, for six months for violating her probation.

Richard B. McSweeney, probation officer, informed the court that Miss Furlong had been violating the terms of her probation. She was standing at the judge's bench weeping silently when the court ordered execution of her sentence.

Miss Furlong dropped to the floor. Court attendants took her to the marshal's office where she regained consciousness.

The original charge against her was passing counterfeit $10 bills on George Correa, Mary T. Leonard and Doris Merritt, all of Boston, on March 18, 1930.

HOAX CABLE IN BOSTON TODAY

many bills that they cost her mother $3000.

SUICIDE IS SCOUTED

Then she was placed in a Montreal convent but her disregard for her studies and for discipline made her stay there comporatively short-lived.

Her family tried again—placing her in a convent school at Providence, R. I. The authorities there notified her relatives that she was not the type for the school and she was withdrawn.

The spokesman who made these disclosures expressed the opinion that the girl was too much in love with life and with herself to have committed suicide even though she believed Arnold to have died.

This new glimpse into the life of the girl who was as great a mystery in life as she is in death came at a time when a report that she had sent the hoax message of Arnold's death to herself was under investigation.

CABLE DUE TONIGHT.

Mrs. Albert E. Carroll of Freeman st., Brookline, her millionaire aunt, characterized the report as ridiculous.

The whole situation remained an enigma while the Chinese Prince drew nearer Boston, scheduled, according to Furness-Withy line officials, to reach quarantine late today.

Capt. Howard Uncles, who is bringing the hoax message whose exact content and source have never been revealed, will deliver the message tomorrow morning to W. S. H. Bernard, British vice-consul here.

Representatives of the steamship line, Arnold and the attorneys engaged by him and Mrs. Carroll to get to the bottom of the affair, will be present to see the message and hear Capt. Uncles' story.

The consul will not impound the message, as previously reported, but will release it, probably to steamship officials for such purpose as they may be called upon to use it in connection with the adjourned inquest at Gibralter where Miss Cook was buried.

ATHLETE DARES THIN ICE TO SAVE SKATER

Skating on Whitman's pond in East Weymouth yesterday and using a home-made sail to add to his speed, Walter F. Sylvester, 19, of Lake Shore drive, East Weymouth, was caught by a stiff wind and carried into the open water in the middle of the pond.

He was saved from drowning by Raymond White, 21, of Washington st., East Weymouth, a well-known amateur athlete, who risked his own life to creep over the ice surface which threatened to give under him close to the spot where Sylvester was struggling in the frigid water.

The latter is a bridegroom of five months. He has been out of employment for some time. Yesterday he joined a big group of skaters on the pond and rigged out a sail which with the stiff wind would enable him to travel over the glassy surface at greater speed.

Suddenly, while scores of other young skaters looked on, the wind caught in the sails and drove him toward the open water.

He was unable to control his direction and the high wind quickly carried him to the dismay of those watching right over to the danger spot not yet frozen and finally directly into it.

White cautiously made his way to the spot where Sylvester was struggling, and after ordering others back so that the ice would not break he was finally able to extend a hockey stick so that Sylvester might grasp it. The latter was then pulled slowly to safety.

Germany Puts Ban on Influx of Marks

Berlin, Feb. 18 (AP)—A new emergency decree was promulgated today to prevent continued drain of foreign currencies and an influx of marks from abroad.

Remittances from abroad or proceeds from sales of securities or real estate here can only be credited on specially restricted accounts. The same restricton applies to German inheritances which go to foreigners.

42 in City Hospital Are Quarantined

A case of scarlet fever discovered in a women's ward at City Hospital led officials to place a quarantine over the ward. They barred all visitors to the 42 patients now confined there, except in cases of emergency, for possibly the next 10 days.

Miss Evelyn Simonds, 19, of 111 Humboldt ave., Roxbury, is the scarlet fever patient.

Tragedy Averted

WALTER F. SYLVESTER

RAYMOND WHITE

Braving thin ice, Raymond White, 21, Weymouth athlete, crawled out to rescue Walter F. Sylvester, 18, after the latter was carried into open water in Whitman's Pond while skating yesterday.

Quincy Families Facing Eviction

Many unemployed Quincy families are faced with eviction from their homes because of non-payment of rent and babies in unheated homes are without milk, officials of the Quincy Unemployment Service Bureau declared today in a special appeal for donations to their campaign for $50,000 which have fallen way below anticipation.

ROOSEVELT FOR TAX REFORMS

New Haven, Ct., Feb. 19 (INS)—"The time has come when the whole taxing system of America must be put on a business basis," wrote Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt in the Yale Daily News today in a special article in which the aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination charged that confusion, bitterness and unfairness have resulted from efforts of local, state and national administrations to bolster up drooping incomes through tax increases.

"Sources of taxation are not without limit" and "these sources cannot with impunity be tapped simultaneously by every kind of government," he said.

He added:

"Federal and state governments vie with each other in taxing the same source. State and local governments vie with each other in duplicating taxes on the same property."

He suggested that the whole field of taxation be definitely apportioned among the taxing units so that each will receive its adequate share without duplication to the taxpayer.

AGED COUPLE IN ROMANCE

After a courtship of three weeks, Isaac Brooks, 76, Boston watchmaker, and Mrs. Fannie Finklestone, 69, twice widowed, of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, appeared at City Hall and filed intentions to marry.

No date for the wedding is set, the bride-to-be said last night, but it will probably take place within a few days.

Brooks is a widower and gave his address as that of Mrs. Finklestone's home. Mrs. Finklestone said last night that she had seen Brooks many times but it was not until three weeks ago that they were introduced by a friend. Since then, she said, he has called on her three or four times and on the last occasion they made plans to wed.

It's a Happy Life if You Don't Weaken

Kansas City, Feb. 19 (AP)—With 36 cents in his pocket and no job Maurice Bickel, Ardmore, Okla., his wife and two children walked into Kansas City.

All they asked was a place to sleep in, a police station. They hope to reach Rochester, N. Y., where Bickel's family may live with a grandmother while the father looks for work.

"We're not discouraged," he told police. "Short rides all day today got us here, and that's the way we'll get to Rochester."

SCHOLAR LAUDS AMERICANS

Prof. Giuseppe A. Borghese, literary critic of the University of Milan, Italy, addressing the Italian Historical Society at a dinner at the City Club, lauded the American people last night for their modesty and generosity.

"I can find no critisicm of the American people," he said "for the reason that they are extremely critical of themselves. They are extravagantly self-critical. Instead of being cold, practical and severe, as they claim, I find them warm-hearted, generous and exceptionally polite. Why, the taxicab drivers, who have been pictured as brusque men, are in reality engaging hosts, for they open the sliding window and carry on a conversation during their trips."

The Italian savant is coming back to Boston next month as the guest of Prof. George Weston, of Harvard University, to deliver a series of lectures on the history of Italian literature.

Lawyer Gets a Year

Brockton, Feb. 19—James H. Dunphy, Brockton and Randolph attorney, started a sentence of one year at Plymouth jail after pleading guilty to an indictment charging the larceny of $8000.

"It's great to be able to eat a fine fish dinner without dodging bones. Where did you get this fish, anyway?"

"This is some of that Birdseye Fish you hear so much about. They cut out the bones and waste and put all clear meat in the package."

"I haven't had any fish like this since that Sunday we went to the seashore. You must have paid plenty for it."

"Well—you'd be surprised to learn I paid less for this dinner than any dinner we've had this week. I told you once that there wasn't anything wasted—every bit of what I bought is right here on the table."

"You mean was here on the table. When I say I like fish I mean it!"

AUTO FAILS AS BLAGDEN CLUE

Cleveland, Feb. 19 (AP)—Fresh clues were sought by police today in the hope of solving the kidnaping mystery related by Harry Blagden, wealthy 45-year-old New York state sportsman.

Blagden staggered into the Cleveland suburban home of a friend, Claude Peck, early Tuesday, after disappearing last Thursday night at Lake Placid, N. Y. He said three men had kidnaped him and brought him here in a truck and that he escaped by overpowering one of them while the other two were absent.

Police yesterday thought they were near a solution when they discovered an automobile bearing a New York license, and answering the description of an auto seen last Saturday night by garagemen at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., who said it was occupied by two men, one of whom looked like Blagden.

Investigation, police said, disclosed that the automobile discovered here was a false clue, and that its owner, J. M. Johnston of Cleveland, had no connection with the case.

They Can't Do It to Jimmy

—By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER—

Started to interview Jimmy Walker about his running for Vice-President. Then decided you didn't have to interview anybody on a thing like that.

It's one of those unavoidable things mentioned with fire, flood and high breezes on the backs of Adams' Express Co. forwarding contracts.

When you are in that job you, are not only playing second fiddle but you are playing it without a bow. And no resin.

Still, it's the old oyster's eyelashes if you aren't exactly punctual. Nobody ever asks what detains a Vice-President, but they hope it's true.

We know James has too many friends to get a job like that. This would be one time when all his pals would vote against him and prove they were his pals.

PAUL-BONCOUR WITH PAINLEVE

Paris, Feb. 19 (AP)—A new cabinet with a distinct radical tinge and with Joseph Paul-Boncour, vice-chairman of the French delegation at the Geneva Disarmament Conference, as foreign minister, seemed likely today.

This prospect followed refusal, first of the right group, and then of former Premier Laval and former War Minister Andre Tardieu, to participate in the slates former Premier Paul Painleve put together.

The radical group in the Chamber of Deputies voted to give unreserved support to M. Painleve, and it was understood Senator Paul-Boncour, once a Socialist deputy, had phoned from Geneva indicating his willingness to accept the foreign office post.

World Gold Supply Small

Washington, Feb. 19 (US)—The world's entire monetary supply of gold, valued at $11,000,000,000, could be stored in a cube of 31 feet in one corner of the Senate Chamber, Senator Thomas (D.), of Oklahoma, told his colleagues.

CHIEF PREVENTS TIEUP

Fire Chief John J. Kelley's good judgment in sending back to their stations more than a score of fire apparatus prevented a tieup of downtown traffic late yesterday.

The tieup started with sounding of an alarm from Tremont and School sts., for awnings burning at the rear of the eighth floor of the building at 6 Beacon st.

Chief Kelley, notified that the fire was slight, kept the companies, as they reached the corner, moving back to thir stations. By this action he cleared the streets within a few minutes.

Charges Dropped in Gang Murders

Los Angeles, Feb. 19 (US)—Although "certain" that Ernest Schultz, under arrest in New York, participated in the racket murders of Harry Moran and Harry Munson here five years ago, police decided today that the case would be "impossible to prove." New York authorities were notified Los Angeles no longer wants Schultz.

KIDNAPERS FLEE IN GUN DUEL IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, Feb. 19.—Police of three states today sought two men, one believed wounded, who escaped after a gun duel when Patrolman Thomas Samon in Cypress st. interfered in the attempt to kidnap a convicted rum runner and his companion.

The pair were riding in an auto bearing Connecticut registration plates. After the fusillade of shots exchanged between the pair and Patrolman Samon they sped away toward Pawtucket and the Massachusetts line. Police of this state, they sped away toward Pawtucket and the Massachusetts line.

Check up was also started at all hospitals in the event the man believed wounded should enter any for treatment. Patrolman Samon said he was certain that several of the shots he fired had broken the windshield of the kidnapers' car and he believes that one of them had been hit.

The intended kidnaping victims are Israel B. Dickens of 12 Cypress st. and Abraham H. [illegible] of [illegible] Cypress st.

The pair told police they were parking a jointly owned car in a Cypress st. garage when the trouble started. As they drove into the garage the other car which they had noticed sticking close behind them followed.

A tall man leaped from the second car, brandishing a gun, and they shouted for help. Patrolman Samon came running up attracted by the noise, and was met by a hail of bullets from the gunman.

400 CASES OF LIQUOR SUNK NEAR BEACH

An opportunity to fish for champagne, rum, whiskey and benedictine awaits visitors to Horseneck Beach, near where 400 cases went down with the [illegible] boat Star last December when she was sunk by the coast guard patrol.

The cache was discovered when eight of the 11 men indicted on a charge of conspiracy to smuggle the liquor into Westport were placed on trial before Judge James A. Lowell in the United States District Court yesterday.

CUSTOMS MAN TESTIFIES

[illegible] is now [illegible] the New Bedford [illegible].

The men on trial are Herbert Hill of Westport, where he was formerly a constable; Albert Bragg of Dartmouth, Felix C[illegible] of New Bedford, John P. Lemos of Fairhaven, William F. [illegible] of Westport, Otis M[illegible] of Dartmouth, Robert S[illegible] of Westport and George Caton of New Bedford.

William J. Fitzgerald, a customs inspector from New Bedford, testified that he went to Westport on the night of the seizure and watched three small boats plying between Little Beach and a motor vessel that lay off Horseneck Beach. While he was on watch he stated that he saw Bragg walking up from the beach, stopped him and inquired what he was doing there. The inspector said that Bragg gave the name of Jones.

FOUND LIQUOR

While questioning him, Fitzgerald said Bragg tried to light a cigarette. The first match went out and Fitzgerald put out the second as it made quite a light in the darkness. He turned Bragg over to Patrolman Montigny as a suspicious person for further inquiry, he stated.

Later Fitzgerald [illegible] men on the beach coming [illegible] Lewis cottage. On going to the cottage he found 250 sacks of liquor there and 11 kegs. He found [illegible] more sacks he said when he went to another Jersey cottage.

SPATS NO SIGN OF WEALTH

John J. Leonard of Roxbury was asked by Assistant Dist. Atty. William J. Gadd[illegible] in S[illegible] Court how he could afford to wear spats if he had lost all his money and was depending on [illegible].

"Well," replied Leonard, "just because I lost my money doesn't mean I lost my clothes."

The question was asked after Leonard, on trial for operating an auto under the influence of liquor, testified that he had lost all his money in an all-night card game.

"I don't know," said Judge Hobson, "I've known men who have lost, not only their money but their shirt in card games."

Leonard was found [illegible] the charge and was fined $[illegible]. He was given until May 2 to pay [illegible].

The defendant [illegible] left his car after it became unmanageable and went into the home of a friend where he took a drink because he was so [illegible]. He was arrested in the [illegible] home in Roxbury after police found his machine smashed up in the street outside.

CHILDREN OPEN WASHINGTON CELEBRATION

Boston's first official contribution to the nation-wide celebration of the George Washington bicentennial will take place at Symphony Hall, Sunday night, at 8 o'clock, when the school children of the city will present a musical, historical and patriotic program.

Washington's activities in this city will be recalled by a series of colorful tableaux to be presented by the pupils, gowned in colonial costumes and powdered wigs of 200 years ago.

The music of that era will be presented by a school band of 60 musicians and a children's chorus of 300 trained voices.

GALLAGHER TO PRESIDE

Acting Mayor Edward M. Gallagher will preside over the program, which has been arranged by Director of Public Celebrations Edmund L. Dolan and Assistant Director Stanton R. White in co-operation with the citizens' committee headed by Chairman Henry F. Brennan.

Dr. Michael Williams, New York historian, author and editor of the Commonweal, will deliver the oration, which will be broadcast by radio to the thousands of listeners in their home. The city celebration, however, will be open to the public without charge.

CADETS TO BE USHERS

Uniformed members of the Boston high school cadets will serve as ushers at Symphony Hall and schoolgirls in Colonial dresses and wigs will distribute official program.

The invocation will be offered by Past Grand Master Dudley Hayes Ferrell of the Masonic fraternity of which Washington was a prominent member, and benediction will be pronounced by the Rev. John J. Fletcher, administrator of St. Cecilia's Church.

Washington's farewell address will be read by Joseph Michael Foley of the Boston Latin School, and Joseph G. Brennan will deliver a special account of Washington's associations with Boston, recalling his three visits here, first as a young man of 24 in 1756, later in command of the army that ended the siege of Boston in '76, and finally his reception here as President in '89.

PYRAMID HONORS QUEEN

Memorial for "Daughter of God"

London, Feb. 19 (UP)—The name "Khenet Kaues," an omnipotent but hitherto unknown queen of ancient Egypt emerged from oblivion today.

A dispatch from Cairo states that scientists excavating at Ghiza found the name engraved on two 12-foot granite tablets forming the entrance to the new pyramid found Wednesday.

The inscription on the tablets said: "King of upper and lower Egypt and daughter of God," which is interpreted as meaning a royal personage who was both daughter and mother of a king.

The new pyramid lies south of the Great Pyramid and west of the Sphynx. It is slightly smaller, but constructed of larger blocks of stone.

MAJ HANNIGAN ADOPTS TACTICS OF DRYS IN OPPOSING DRY LAW

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E. ROGERS

THERE ARE MANY who will agree with Major Judson Hannigan's criticism of Judge Joseph Zottoli of the Boston municipal court for having spoken in favor of the Eighteenth Amendment before the W. C. T. U. There are also many who will disagree sharply with Major Hannigan. They will say, for instance, that if a judge must not speak in favor of prohibition, a major of either the state or national military forces—also a servant of the state—must not speak against it. That is perfectly logical.

I am distinctly inclined to agree with these latter critics. I would not forbid either Major Hannigan or Judge Zottoli to speak. I certainly see no reason why both of them should not speak freely on any subject on which they are informed and which is in the public interest.

One cannot help having a lingering suspicion that if Judge Zottoli had spoken against prohibition, there would have been no complaint on the part of Major Hannigan. That cannot be proved, of course, but the average reader will be so sure in his own mind that such is the case, that he will refuse to consider the episode as a matter of principle at all, and will lay it to mere politics and picayune politics at that.

Let Those Who Know Talk

A judge will, of course, not talk publicly upon any case which he happens to be trying. He will not allow anyone else to talk to him about that case with intent to influence him. But the question of prohibition is not a single case; it is a multitude of cases. The courts are full of them. It is doubtful whether any living person really knows any more about the success or failure of prohibition than do the men whose business it is to enforce the law.

Many judges all over the land have gone on record as saying publicly that prohibition is a failure, cannot be enforced. One has heard no outcry from the people who want to reform the prohibition law. No, then the outcry comes from the other side, and is just as unfair, just as meaningless as Major Hannigan's remarks—and just as much an attempt to draw a red herring across the true scent.

It is getting to be a habit of our national mind, to believe certain people ought not to have anything to say about controversial matters which affect the public interest. Almost it seems that the better equipped they are to speak, the more impartial their positions make them, the less they are expected to say anything, leaving all the discussion to be handled by the violent partisans, the professional champions, regardless of their intelligence or their competence.

It is taken for granted that a clergyman may say anything he likes on anything he likes without criticism. Major Hannigan would never think of criticizing Dr. Conrad for saying what Judge Zottoli said. But the chances are that Judge Zottoli has had infinitely more experience than Dr. Conrad in the matter. Why should the public be deprived of his opinion any more than that of Dr. Conrad? Major Hannigan would probably not attempt to shut Professor Carver's mouth. But he would probably make a big fuss were he to find a well-informed and intelligent public school teacher speaking on the subject—provided the teacher were speaking in opposition to Major Hannigan.

No Rules Against Having Opinions

I will say categorically that there is nothing in legal ethics or in the ethics of public service to prevent a judge or a public school teacher from speaking on controversial subjects of public interest. There is no reason why a college professor should refrain. Or a college president.

Supposing a crowd of fathers of Harvard students should address a letter to President Lowell, saying: "As good customers of yours who are paying you to educate our sons, we must insist that you do not say anything publicly which will hurt business, such as an economic boycott of Japan."

Supposing one were to take the ground that the editor of a newspaper is bound to give all the news with equal space and equal impartiality, and without expressing his own point of view. That is, apparently, what the Drys want the press of the United States to do. They object violently to what they call "the wet press," pretending that it is a subsidized press.

Once more the Drys are jumping on the Literary Digest poll, a poll which many repeated experiments have shown to be about as fair, impartial, scientific, and statistically honest as one can be. But soon—now that the first results are beginning to come in, strongly wet—we shall hear the old charges by the Drys of collusion, corruption, incompetence, dishonesty and what-not. They would have liked to prevent the Digest from undertaking it, if they had been able.

These tactics on the part of the Drys are so familiar that we no longer pay any attention to them. It is a great disappointment, however, to see a member of the opposition hurting his cause by exactly the same kind of silly talk that disgusts us in the fanatical Drys. There are arguments, enough, on his side, goodness knows. He does not need that morally dishonest, disingenuous, opportunistic argument that because a man is on the bench and therefore competent to talk on certain subjects, he must be muzzled—unless he talks on our side!

The great question—and it is a great question—is going to be solved by argument, discussion, throwing the light upon it, analyzing it pro and con—but by people who are competent to do it. If a municipal judge can tell us something about it, as he sees it, even if his point of view disagrees with ours, let us welcome his ideas and listen to them carefully.

Let us not—like the Drys and Major Hannigan—run crying to Teacher because Jimmy isn't playing fair!

ENOS HOME IS LOOTED AGAIN

For the second time in three weeks, thieves ransacked the home of Charles J. Enos, State st. broker, living on the Jamaicaway, Jamaica Plain, a few doors from the home of Mayor Curley. The burglars obtained nearly $5000 worth of clothing, silverware and jewelry.

The thieves yesterday pried off a burglar lock which had been attached to the door following the robbery three weeks ago when several thousand dollars' worth of loot was also obtained.

The burglars also entered the home of Nino Pepper in the apartment above the Enos' home and obtained a large quantity of valuables.

Police obtained finger prints. They expressed the belief that the burglars had been watching the apartment house until they had an opportunity to enter yesterday when no one was at home. It is believed they also sought negotiable papers contained in a wall safe which they were unable to open.

Find Lola Stricken; Mystery Stalks

What Has Gone Before

At 11:30 on New Year's Eve, Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Mayfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Dougherty. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe, known as "The Night-Club Lady," widow of Gaylord Gifford, the cotton millionaire, is the "higher-up" responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffle the police. She arrives at the Mayfair accompanied by Vincent Rowland, an attorney. At Lola's urgent request Colt joins her party and she tells him her life is threatened. He takes up the case and surrounds her apartment with a police guard.

Now Read On—

"NOTHING'S GOING to happen to Lola," he decided, comforting himself. "She has a very short temper [illegible] You know, my dear Colt, she has a [illegible] undeserved reputation as a [illegible] liver.

"Her reputation is almost operatic—I mean people think of her as a kind of Tosca living in present-day Manhattan. Nothing could be more absurd. Lola seems insincere and frothy, but she is really a decent sort."

"What is your interest in her?" Colt asked.

[illegible] broken only [illegible]

"I am interested in Lola Carewe," Vincent Rowland replied, almost defensively, "because she has sound ideas about modern art. I think she is an original spirit in decoration. Look at these rooms! Some of her effects were exhibited at the Modern Designers Gallery last spring. She is a very superior person at heart—an enigma really."

WHO WISHED HER DEAD?

"Do you know any person who might wish her dead?" pursued Colt.

Vincent Rowland sat there, his cigar held by his teeth, while he lifted the skin of his face by pressing the tips of his forefingers upward at his temples. [illegible] "There are plenty of men who have tried to lay their hearts at her feet, since Gifford's sudden death. She has refused them all. I don't believe any of her disappointed males would murder. Still jealousy——"

"Might there be other motives?" suggested Dougherty, studying a diamond ring on his own finger.

Vincent Rowland frowned and [illegible]

"Perhaps. There is one curious circumstance which, maybe, I should not tell. When I first met her——"

Unexpectedly, the bedroom door opened and Lola Carewe appeared wearing a peach-colored woolen bathrobe with straight black stripes. She was bright and smiling.

ON EDGE OF HYSTERIA

"Please don't be angry with me, Mr. Commissioner," she apologized. "That woman detective of yours is so charming—she laughed me out of my pout. I realize I have behaved very badly."

"Say no more about it," dismissed Colt.

"What time is it now?" she called gaily. "How long before the deadline?"

"It is just five minutes to 3 o'clock," Colt informed her.

"And during those five minutes you ought to obey every request of the police commissioner—to the letter, Lola, to the letter," enjoined Vincent Rowland severely.

He [illegible] on the knob and her cheek [illegible] the door.

"I will be back in just a moment," she gurgled. "I left a cigarette case in here!" I saw that Colt was right: she was dangerously on the edge of hysteria. For a moment, no one spoke. There was a solemn quiet in the room, a silence almost ominous, as if we were on the eve of a serious discovery. Far down below us in the streets someone was blowing a horn, a childish sound, incongruous and ludicrously inappropriate. A shadow marched past the window blind, one of Colt's men passing in his sentinel march on the terrace.

"Really, Mr. Colt," Lola caroled,

WOMAN DENIES 'BADGER VICTIM' GAVE CASH

$250 GIVEN HER BY PARENTS, SHE SAYS

Jury Expected to Get Mrs. Anderson's Case for Verdict Later Today

Final arguments were made today in superior court in the trial of Mrs. Ann Anderson of Dorchester, charged with participating in a $1200 "shakedown."

The case was due to go to the jury some time before adjournment today.

Continuing on the stand in her own defense today, Mrs. Anderson, who formerly lived in Arlington st., Back Bay, where the alleged "badger" game was played on Reginald Anselm of [illegible], Dorchester, denied that she had accepted money from Anselm.

The approximately $250 in her handbag she declared was money given her by her father and mother in September, a short time before her arrest.

Her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Epstein of Woodrow ave., Dorchester, testified she had given her daughter $75 on September 30.

FREQUENT VISITOR

Under questioning by her attorney, J. F. Farley, Mrs. Anderson testified that she had known Anselm for three or four years. She said she had been married for a year and a half and that Anselm was a constant visitor to her Arlington st. apartment.

"Mr. Anselm called me up on Friday (Oct. 2)," she said, "and asked me if I were doing anything the next day. I said no, and he said he'd be over.

"I told him the next day not to come until after three o'clock, and he arrived at the house shortly after five.

"We played the radio in the parlor, and shortly afterward a knock came at the door.

PLEADED WITH MEN

"A man's voice said there was a telegram for me, and after I opened the door I saw two strange men."

Mrs. Anderson related going to headquarters with the two men and walking up the front steps when the man she was with, who represented himself as a detective-sergeant, listened to her pleadings and let her go.

Curley Treats Cuban Kids and Wins Kingly Crown

And now it's His Majesty King James I of Wajay, instead of mere Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, as up from Cuba came today a tale of a new office won by Curley on the strangest campaign he ever waged, a platform of merry-go-round, ice cream and [illegible] clothes.

According to the Havana Post, the Mayor and his party [illegible] the [illegible] on Sunday. The Mayor, his [illegible] and other members of the [illegible] were [illegible] through the [illegible] the town of Wajay [illegible] when the Mayor sighted a group of children standing about a merry-go-round with an ice cream wagon parked nearby, including [illegible] business.

Curley then bought out the stock of the ice cream wagon and that was distributed. And when the mayor saw two kids practically naked he marched them into the village store and bought them new suits.

When it came time for the Curley party to leave, the villagers clustered around their car, the mayor of the town stepped forward and declared that by popular acclaim Curley had been made king of Wajay, and declared that it had been voted to set aside the next day—that was last Monday—as a holiday in honor of the beneficent, the magnificent and the honorable Mayor Curley of Boston, with fiesta and everything.

CARNEY DIES; LEAVES $42,000

Death came to James Carney at City Hospital today, with $2000 in cash and $40,000 in bankbooks in the hospital safe.

Carney was taken to the hospital Monday by Patrolman Fred Gallagher after he feebly made his way into South End Settlement House and asked for assistance.

The $2000 was found by Gallagher in the pockets of Carney and the latter led Gallagher to his room where the bankbooks were found.

Scores of "relatives" appeared at the hospital after reports of Carney's illness—and cash—were published but Carney told police he had only one relative who lived in New York.

He was suffering from heart trouble and a bronchial ailment when he sought aid at the Settlement House. He failed to say how he had acquired the wealth.

NO CUTS FOR DRYS A NATURAL PLAN

By GILBERT SELDES

Gilbert Seldes

I TAKE A GREAT PLEASURE in the news that the House committee has refused to cut down the appropriation for prohibition enforcement. Since I detest prohibition and dislike the manner of its enforcement I am afraid that my pleasure is only philosophical. Francis Bacon said that "the contemplation of things as they are, without superstition or imposture, without error or confusion," is a noble thing. It gives us the same satisfaction as solving a complicated problem in algebra, and the pleasure of hitting a home run is not very different. In all of these things we take hold of something real. The reality in this case is that prohibition and the enforcement of prohibition are the sole supremely important objects of our Government standing above moral freedom and economic necessity.

Back to Business

Sometimes, when we see our Government busy with schemes to relieve the depression, floating bond issues, denouncing hoarders, interfering with foreign wars and otherwise wasting its time, we may lose sight of this primal obligation to enforce prohibition. An item of news like the present one puts things in their proper perspective, and the proportions are further indicated when we see the budgets which did get slashed. The State Department, of which it is the duty, if not the habit, to keep us at peace with the world, is reduced by a million and a half dollars; the departments of commerce and of labor, which work for peace and prosperity at home, lose two million between them. The share of the commerce department in this cut strikes at the aeronautics branch.

Homeless Hectors

Our diplomats abroad will not be well housed, but the rumor is that our diplomats abroad do not deserve pleasant houses which are technically American (and therefore dry) soil. It is even rumored that our representatives are often seen in low cafes, so why should we give them agreeable houses?

The only distressing item in all this is that, although the prohibition unit got all that it asked for, because "this appropriation is for the enforcement of a law which presents unusual difficulties at times," an earlier request providing for increase in the number of dry agents was not granted. I call this weakness.

Service Stars

I notice that service stars are being prepared for employers who will take on idle men and I think the idea ought to spread farther with a horrible apprehension that one of these days they may be giving us gold stars for valiant service in the war against bad times. As usual, the trouble is that the honors are given to people who act and not to the people who think. Something like a service stripe ought to be awarded to both amateur and professional solvers of our difficulties. (I might get a nasty one myself.)

Proxy for the President

I believe that the Constitution forbids the President to receive gifts and titles from foreign monarchs, and I have never heard of Congress voting fresh honors to a President; so we have no fit accolade for the President's stroke of genius in his courageous stand against hoarding. Prevented from doing him honor, we can still honor him by proxy, and my vote goes to the man whose name I have forgotten who made a most important suggestion. He said that for many years he had been carrying a luck piece, a golden double eagle, and that he was now about to deposit this twenty-dollar gold piece in his bank. Convinced that thousands and thousands of other men likewise carry these delightful and valuable tokens, he suggests that we appeal to them all to put money into circulation and multiply credit, even if they have to deprive themselves of their personal good luck.

Greatest Since Hamilton

It seems a pity that the long service and the experience of Mr. Ogden Mills should have prevented this token depositor from being made Secretary of the Treasury. He is just the kind of man we need and a little mathematics proves it. If each of the ten million, roughly speaking, unemployed were to deposit their luck pieces we should have nearly one-fifth of a billion dollars in the bank, and this would create a credit of about two billion dollars.

Mighty Small Change

Had this regrettably unidentified individual succeeded Mr. Mellon, Mr. Mills' place should go to the like-minded gentleman who reported that a great many people carried more small change than they need for their daily expenses. He proposed that this excess of cash be deposited. As my bank informs me that the cost of every transaction, deposit or withdrawal, is about two cents, I am a little bit afraid the net profit might be in the red.

DELICATESSEN WIVES—DO THEY EXIST?

EVERY DAY, if you will go carefully through the newspaper, you will find somewhere a sarcastic crack at the "delicatessen wife." The [illegible] who is supposed to spend her [illegible] at the [illegible] tens a [illegible] and serve [illegible] her [illegible] suddenly entering into the living room, and closing the boudoir door behind her, "you mustn't pull such a long face. It isn't worth it. Nothing is, you know."

[illegible] happening [illegible] near to Colt, she suddenly put her hands on his shoulders and kissed him on the [illegible]. As he stared at her, too startled to speak, Lola turned and walked on toward the guest room.

"Miss Carewe"—now Colt's voice cracked like a whip—"don't go in there—alone!"

"To hell with all that!" was Lola's sudden, fierce rejoinder. "I want my cigarette case." Before [illegible] she had [illegible] the guest room and [illegible]

"Oh, don't excite her, Colt," begged Vincent Rowland. "She's perfectly safe in there. Nothing can happen to her. Let her calm down."

[illegible] a woman screamed. It was a [illegible] chilled with horror [illegible] awful [illegible] and then was throttled off. There was a crash like the fall of a body to the floor. In one instant Colt's hand was on the knob and he flung [illegible]

On the floor of the guest chamber lay the body of Lola Carewe. The [illegible] the room bathed her [illegible] What had happened [illegible] dead [illegible] from what cause.

While Colt knelt beside her the [illegible] like fireworks in my bewildered brain. People came running from other rooms. Suddenly I heard a sound which haunts me even now. From somewhere in the penthouse a clock chimed three brazen strokes.

We were in the presence of a mystery that soon would have a nation by the ears. No wonder that Thatcher Colt was resolved from the first to solve this mystery above all others, this crime committed against [illegible] his precaution.

The scene in that [illegible] room [illegible] now into a chamber of fantastic mystery, is graven indelibly on my memory.

Lola Carewe's body was sprawled [illegible] on the floor contorted almost into the form of a question mark. She was still wearing her French [illegible] bathrobe tied with a sash and buttoned. Her [illegible] black hair was tousled and disarranged. On her pretty face was a livid flush. At the right corner of her lips glistened a spot of blood. The eyes were wide open and fixed in a gaze. She did not seem to be breathing.

Beside the still figure of the woman knelt Thatcher Colt. His face was stern, his black eyes narrowed. His fingers played around Lola's wrist seeking her pulse. Listening, he laid his ear against her heart. Then very deliberately the chief brought his nostrils close to the parted lips and sniffed and [illegible] of her mouth.

We who were watching him could not tell from his manner if indeed he had discovered an odor of poison, the purpose of that last grim action. In stiff attitudes we stood there watching. I was close to Colt. Dougherty was bent over on the other side of the girl, his red hands spread over his knees, his popping blue eyes fixed on her in bewilderment.

In the doorway suddenly appeared Mrs. Carewe, her features white and pinched with fright against the [illegible] of her hair. She ran forward, fell beside Lola and kissing her frantically cried to her to open her eyes. Dougherty led her back to the door. Peeping around the edge of the door was Vincent Rowland. The attorney's eyes were curved slits and the fingers of one sleek old hand worried at his whiskered chin. Beyond were clustered a group of startled faces, the maid, the butler and our woman detective.

Fluffy Way of Making Biscuits

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

SHOW ME the man who doesn't enjoy sinking a tooth into a tender fluffy hot biscuit and I'll show you a woman who doesn't like Chicken a la King.

In the Martha Lee Cooking School this week we've been making those Norwood Surprise Rolls that won $100 for Miss Mary G Bonney of 47 Central st., Norwood in a recent Japanese crab meat contest.

For these rolls, ordinary baking powder biscuit dough in the proportion of 2 cups of flour, 4 tsps. baking powder 1 tsp salt, 4 tbsps. shortening and ⅔ cup of milk is rolled out into ¼-inch thickness and cut in 5-inch squares. On one side of each square is placed a tbsp. of crab meat mixture made by putting through the food chopper 1 can of Japanese crab meat (boned) and 1 tsp. of onion. Mayonnaise is added to make a mixture that will hold its shape. The edges of the biscuit squares are brushed with milk and the square folded over like a flat pocketbook, and the edges pinched together.

These are placed on a greased pan and baked in a piping hot oven (450 deg.) for 20 minutes. Over them is poured a hot sauce, made by creaming together 3 tbsps. of melted butter, 3 tbsps. of flour, ½ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. paprika, and ½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce. To this is added 1 can of tomato soup and this is stirred over a low flame until thick and smooth. Last of all a little of the hot mixture is added to 5 tbsps. of peanut butter, and this is put back into the sauce and stirred in until smooth.

Daily True Story

Fate Takes a Hand

IT'S THE little things which often shape the course of a man's life. The little things called chance, or even luck, the unpredictable combinations beyond human control.

There was Daniel McLaughlin, as fine a cop as ever threw a leg over a motorcycle saddle and overhauled a speeder. But that's all he did do—five years on the force and still chasing speeders. Dan had begun to realize he wasn't getting anywhere. But there wasn't much he could do about it. He was a born cop and he'd be one until he died or they retired him by force.

He was thinking of that when the blue car, only half seen in the evening dusk, shot past as he turned into Hilltop rd. Dan jerked open the throttle and his machine seemed to leap from under him. It could do 80. Within a minute he was ahead of the speeding car and waving it back. The car drew to the curb and stopped. Dan kicked the stand under his own machine and walked up to the driver.

DAN MEETS EILEEN

He was about to deliver himself of a few caustic remarks when a girl seated next to the driver said "Hello, Dan."

Dan peered at her. "Oh, hello, Eileen," he said. Then he looked at the man. But again the girl interrupted.

"Dan, I would like you to meet Mr. Andrews," she said. "Mr. Andrews—Officer McLaughlin."

Well, what could Dan do? He couldn't hand a ticket to a man under such circumstances. He acknowledged the introduction and waved the car on with an admonition to "take it easy." Dan was sore as he walked back to his motorcycle. If he ever caught that Andrews fellow by himself he'd hand him a ticket, all right. And a rap in the jaw if he didn't like it. Such were his thoughts. What right had he to be riding around with Eileen Daly? Eileen was Dan's girl. Well, maybe not exactly that. But that wasn't Dan's fault. All he wanted was a chance.

It was close to midnight when Dan, patroling the suburban section, came down Hilltop rd again. Ahead of him a car turned out from a side road. Dan spotted it, trailed it for a few moments and then speeded up. He drew alongside the car, blew his horn and then waved to the driver to stop.

"Get out," he said to the driver. Then, "Let me see your driver's license."

Without a word the other produced it. "All right," said Dan after looking at it. "Get back in your car and drive to the Wilson Avenue station. You're under arrest."

"Listen," said the other. "Don't be a fool. What will it get you? I'm in a hurry, I tell you. Even if you take me in, the fine won't be more than twenty-five dollars at the most. Here, you take it and pay it for me. Or just forget about it if you want to."

The man reached for his pocket as if to take out a wallet.

"Keep your hands out of your pockets," said Dan. His own eyes, widening slightly, were on those of the other.

"But, officer," began the man, "all I want to do is—"

"Keep your hands out of your pockets."

The other didn't obey. His hand seemed to catch as he tugged at his pocket. Dan's own hand dropped to the holstered pistol at his side.

"I warned you," he said.

Two shots sounded almost together—then two more. One of the shots wrecked the front lamp on the motorcycle behind Dan. The three others coming from his own gun bored through the body of the other man. He fell back against the car, attempted to cough and then slumped to the street. Dan bent over him.

"Now you've done it," he said to himself. He was half sick. He could see the headlines—a cop killing a man in a row over a speeding ticket. Who would believe the other had tried to shoot first?

There were headlines the next morning, after Dan had driven to a hospital with the body and the work of identification had been completed. Headlines after the silverware and jewels had been found in the car—"Cop Kills Burglar."

A NOTORIOUS BURGLAR

Underneath the headlines the story told how Motorcycle Policeman Dan McLaughlin had shot it out with a burglar who had been vainly sought for weeks after robbing a score of suburban homes. Dan's picture was there too, and one of the burglar taken from the rogues gallery, that of a desperate criminal with a record.

The luck part of it, the chance, the combination of circumstances—where do they come in? Well, that's a thing that Dan didn't even tell Eileen until much later.

"After meeting you with that Andrews fellow I was so mad that I swore the next bird I ran across I would run in. And this fellow wasn't hardly going over the speed limit. Ordinarily I would have passed him up. But that night I was so sore I stopped him and, well—"

True Cause of Rheumatism Unknown

Dr. Copeland

ACUTE rheumatism or rheumatic fever is a disease which has baffled science. Its exact cause is still unknown. A germ with a dreadful name, streptococcus rheumaticus, has been found in many cases. This germ is believed by some authorities to be the cause of rheumatism. When science actually and positively determines what causes rheumatism, a means for the prevention of the disease will be found.

The onset of rheumatism is [illegible] associated with cold and dampness. The sufferer complains of joint pain. It attacks one joint, clears up and then affects another joint.

During the acute attack the sufferer should be kept in a warm bed. The affected joints may be wrapped in many layers of cotton. If not too snugly bandaged, such support is very marked in the control of pain.

The patient should be well covered with blankets during the stage of fever and sweats. Encourage drinking plenty of water and eating simple but nourishing food.

New Home Was Not Much of Success With Guests

By WINIFRED BLACK

CORRECT or comfy—which do you choose?

My friend with a new house is just making up her mind.

It's a lovely house she has. Beautiful windows, fine spacious doorways and two or three of the rooms with vaulted ceilings of oak that make you feel just a bit insignificant when you look up at them.

A balcony or so, a little patio and fountain and a cloistered walk all shut in from the weather, thank you.

But when the company is gone, there's something a little dreary about it. Something just a shade too formal for comfort.

And the other night when five or six friends dropped in, the evening was not a great success.

Nothing you could actually name, but somehow nobody seemed quite at home and everybody left early, protesting loudly that they'd had a wonderful time.

The woman with the new house sat down in one of the Archbishop's chairs and thought it over.

Heavy curtains of just the right shade and space and the lack of clutter that is now the new note in the scheme of house furnishing.

She called the whole family to the rescue—a shove to the antique sofa, there that was a better angle, the Bishop's chairs further away against the wall—a small smoking table close to the fireplace, a great open basket of brown nuts on the other side of the hearth—both easy to reach—the good sturdy oak settle from its hiding place at the back of the house put that in front of the fire, one of the good big chairs in reaching distance. A box of bonbons and a magazine on the inlaid table.

How homey and comfy, and human it began to look.

Family sat down and began to crack nuts and munch a bonbon or two, and the fire laughed and sang on the hearth and the wind howled a great shout of laughter down the roaring chimney, and life was life again.

Not correct perhaps, not in historic harmony—but comfortable and comforting against the rude hurts of the noisy, careless world outside.

Correct or comfortable—which do you choose?

You can't be both, you know—you really can't, unless you're one of the people who cannot be comfortable and be—incorrect.

NOW SCIENCE TELLS WHY BRAN IS SO GOOD FOR HEALTH

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Has "Bulk" and Vitamin B; Also Healthful Iron

By using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, millions of people have overcome common constipation, and the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so frequently result.

New laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN supplies two things needed to overcome temporary and recurring constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines. Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently it clears the intestines of wastes.

Further experiments prove ALL-BRAN provides twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Eat this delicious cereal and avoid pills and drugs. They cause artificial action, and often lead to harmful habits.

Try two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily—sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN has a delicious, nut-sweet flavor. Enjoy as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in making fluffy bran muffins, breads, omelets, etc. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

THERE WILL BE NO SOIREES THIS WEEK-END, NO dancing parties or night clubing—almost all of the Harvard clubs, the Hasty Pudding, the A. D., the Fly and others, are having their annual dinners Saturday night, with Sunday lunch thrown in for those who care for it. Monday, Washington's Birthday, will give those who came on from New York and other distances a chance to get back on the job.

Frances Gardiner

So the dear girls will have to entertain hen parties over this week-end, and how they hate the prospect.

Just before all this happened, Frances Gardiner gave her skating party, but unfortunately the ice was very poor at The Country Club and the convivial little group had to find a bowling alley and finish up the evening there. Anynow, any party that Miss Gardiner is in on is always a success and no doubt they all wound up at somebody's house for a breakfast of scrambled eggs and sausages, as is the old Boston custom.

We received our invitation this morning to the preview of the Studio Players of the Harvard Dramatic Club in a Russian play, Chekovs-Yanga, at the Rogers Building in Cambridge.

Will Spend Year Studying Abroad

DID YOU KNOW THAT HUGH BIGELOW IS HOLDING an exhibition of his sculptoring at the Walker Building, one of the old Tech buildings on Boylston st.? He has done some very good heads of young Boston girls, we hear, and we are going to try and get a peek at them before the week ends. After this exhibition, Mr. Bigelow is sailing for Paris for a year of study.

Divorce Minded

THERE IS ONE PLACE IN this country where there seems to be no depression, and that is the divorce courts. We are just wondering if one has to pay for a divorce in advance, whether you are sure of the outcome or not. We can imagine nothing more baffling than spending a thousand dollars to bet on a decree to find you picked the wrong judge. Anyhow, there are many who take the chance and we have just heard that the Ben Bassetts, Mrs. Bassett was the former Gertrude Russell), are leaving each other for better or for worse. Mr. Bassett is a relative of former Governor Bassett of Maine.

Mrs. Guild Better

IT WAS VE Y PLEASANT, indeed, to have a little chat over the telephone yesterday with dear Mrs. Curtis Guild. She is still confined to the house and not entirely recovered from a recent indisposition, but it was very nice to hear her cheery voice over the wire. There is one little lady who will never lose her sense of humor or zest for life if she lives to be a centurian—which we hope she will.

Home From Europe

AMONG THE NEW ENGLANDERS arriving on the express liner Bremen of the North German Lloyd Line in New York are Mr. and Mrs. J. Cheney Wells of Southbridge. They will be met by Mr. Channing Wells of Boston, who has been in New York the past few days staying at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

Tea Invitations

WE ARE COMMENCING TO feel real Gotham, if you know what we mean, so many stage celebrities are arriving in town and inviting US to tea. This morning we received an invitation to meet Miss Blanche Yurka at an informal reception and lunch at the Statler and the week after that we hear that Conrad Nagel is arriving in town and of course we wouldn't MISS meeting him. Miss Yurka is opening her play Electra next week and we hear that it is good. You remember that is the play in which Alice Dalton, daughter of the Philip Daltons of Milton, had a part when it played in New York the early part of this winter. It would have been nice to have seen Al do her stuff in Boston but she is on the road now with Walter Hampden. What a break that was for her.

We Are So Timid

WE HAVE BEEN ASKED to respond with a short message of greeting to the celebrities. That is going to keep us awake nights from now until next Wednesday and IF we do it it will break all precedent—how we have suffered from other after dinner speakers and what a chance to get back. However we are most awfully soft-hearted and, deep down in our consciousness, VERY timid. Time will tell what happens.

AIR TRIBUTE TO MRS. PHOEBE HEARST

Extolled As One of the Greatest Women in the Country

By JAMES ADAM

San Francisco, Feb. 19—Countless thousands of parents and teachers on the Pacific Coast listened to a notable radio tribute to the memory of Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst as "the greatest woman our western country has ever known and one of the greatest women who lived in this broad land of ours."

The tribute was voiced by Hugh Barrett Dobbs, popularly known to radio listeners as "Captain Dobbsie." In commemoration of the founding of the national Congress of Parent-Teachers Association by Mrs. Hearst 35 years ago.

Speaking from the studio of Station KFRC in San Francisco, last night, over a coast network, Dobbs acclaimed Mrs. Hearst for her many philanthropies, saying "her charities weave as broad as the sea and silent as the quiet night."

LOVE WITH EVERY GIFT

He also expressed gratitude to her son, William Randolph Hearst, for the support he is giving to the work of the parents and teachers' organization in newspapers throughout America.

After telling how the Parent-Teachers' Congress was launched in Washington, D. C., on Feb. 17, 1897 by Mrs. Hearst, Dobbs said.

"Mrs. Hearst gave and gave and gave, and with every gift, no matter how humble, went a loving thought.

"She talked little about religion but her whole life was a prayer, a thanksgiving and a blessing.

"Hanging over the fireplace in the entrance hall of her home in Pleasanton, Cal., is this charming verse entitled 'Prophetic Vision.'

Who cares for the burden, the night or rain,
And the long, steep, lonesome road,
When at last through the darkness a light shines plain—
When a voice calls "Hail," and a friends draws rein,
With an arm for the stubborn load.
For life is the chance for a friend or two,
This side of the journey's goal,
Though the earth be a desert the whole night through,
Yet the gay flowers bloom and the sky grows blue,
When a soul salutes a soul

SIMPLE WAYS

"Endowed with a brilliant mind and a broad vision that was almost prophetic, acquainted as she was with the world and the great and the mighty of the earth, Mrs. Hearst was yet as simple in all her ways as any simple woman with nothing to think of but her home and children.

"Perhaps no woman in America accomplished more to further education and to elevate the youth of her day than did Phoebe Hearst with her widespread generosity and her philanthropy."

Convalescent Home Will Be Benefited

There is much interest in the International Skating Carnival to take place in the Boston Arena the evening of Saturday, Feb. 27, under the auspices of the Boston Skating Club.

It is being held for the benefit of the Convalescent Home of the Children's Hospital in Wellesley. The good work which this home is doing has attracted the interest of the public at large and members of Boston's most prominent society are actively engaged working for the success of the carnival.

Committee Heads

Mrs. George H. Monks, president of the home, heads the list of active workers. The Misses Anna W. Cutler and Dorothy Lawrence, both well known in Junior League circles, are in charge of the tickets. Mrs. Nathaniel W. Niles is allotted the responsibility of the entertainment and costumes; Mrs. M. L. Madden, housing; Richard L. Hapgood and Mrs. Theresa Weld Blanchard, programs; Frederick Goodridge, music; James A. Tower, decorations and lighting; Miss Martha Brown, fourteen step committee; Miss Grace Madden, children's number, and Mrs. Arthur E. Grannis, Jr., liaison officer.

Through the efforts of Charles Morgan Rotch of Milton, president of the Boston Skating Club, many of the winners of the Olympics will take part in the carnival, and the United States, England, France, Sweden, Norway, Switzerland and Austria will be represented in the event.

Among Boxholders

Some of the boxholders are Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bemis, Dr. and Mrs. John W. Bartol, Mr. and Mrs. Cary Curtis, Mrs. Elbridge G. Cutler, Mr. Russell Codman, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. William Storer Eaton, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Godfrey, Miss Mary B. Lothrop, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lisle, Mrs. J. B. Munn, Mr. and Mrs. Q. A. Shaw McKean, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sharples, Mr. and Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, Jr.; Mrs. Frederick Thayer and Miss Alice Thorndike.

Books—And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

Some years ago, when I was living at the Algonquin Hotel in New York I used to see a child in the corridors and in the dining room, always with her mother. A lovely child she was, and I was fascinated by her witty and clever remarks when I happened to go up in the elevator with her.

I learned that she was Elsie Janis; and every evening she went over to the old Casino Roof Garden and imitated Dan Daly, then at the height of his fame. She was the sensation of our city, the greatest child actress who had ever trod the boards, they said. She was so young that the Gerry Society got after her. Then, for a time she would disappear and play the sticks.

It is interesting to be reading her autobiography today. She should receive a prize for the best title of the year: "So Far, So Good!" And the book, published by Dutton, lives up to its name.

Miss Janis has reached, so she tells us, the mature age of 42, but the spring is still in her step, the song in her throat, and youth in her heart. She tells her own story with apparent delight in the telling. She has found life wonderful, for the most part, and her enthusiasm never wanes.

It must be terrible to be known as a "child wonder": to be called, by the general public, "Little Elsie," and to have everybody fearful that one's childish talent may not last through the years. Such a prodigy is likely to be spoiled. One cannot remain Little Eva forever.

But Elsie Janis somehow escaped the usual fate of the child actress. She was inordinately clever, and as a mimic of no matter whom, she has never been surpassed. She could become Eddie Foy before your very eyes, simply by moving her mouth and shrugging her shoulders, and talking between her clenched lips.

It is interesting to find Miss Janis confessing that she could not "get" William Faversham when she tried to imitate him in "The Squaw Man." His mannerisms eluded her; yet 25 years later, in her new métier as a writer for the films, she was engaged on the scenario of that old play and completed it. But with other actors and actresses she was more successful.

New York was glamorous then and Miss Janis goes back to the days when great names in our theater were sprinkled in electric lights all over the town. She made her first enormous success as a legitimate actress in "The Vanderbilt Cup" with a strong supporting cast and she toured the country.

Miss Janis writes of her early love affairs without restraint. Of one suitor, most eligible it would seem, she says: "Mother adored him, but quite naturally did not go into cheers when my marriage was discussed." One wonders about this. And so the years rushed along with this charming young actress remaining a spinster. Only a few months ago, and since her mother's death, she finally decided to take a husband. But that is another story.

When Miss Janis gets to the World War, and her part in it as an entertainer, she is at her lively best. She was known, as everyone by this time knows, as "the sweetheart of the A. E. F." She sang, she danced, she cavorted, for the lads at the front. She traveled over rough roads, under a rain of shot and shell, in order not to disappoint those waiting men. She never did.

Evidently, with her high spirits she had more fun at the front than she did when she penetrated into that mysterious realm known as Society and met members of the Four Hundred. If now and then she seems impressed by the rich people she came to know, one could not blame her for that. She was visiting with Vanderbilts and Belmonts [illegible] but she admits that she and her mother never tried to [illegible] behind those [illegible] them [illegible].

At the end Miss Janis writes as frank a statement as I have ever seen concerning her attitude toward men. Few would have had the courage to say what she [illegible] There [illegible] of her coming marriage as the last pages are reached. Since she wrote these paragraphs she has [illegible] what her heart threatened to [illegible] I wish her all the happiness she so richly deserves.

Los Angeles, Feb. 19—Katharine Cornell, who has valiantly resisted the movies is very likely to succumb in a day or two. There is a big chance Miss Cornell will play the part she created on the stage in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" for United Artists. The deal is pending [illegible] and Joseph Schenck has [illegible] closed for the rights to "The Barretts" with the [illegible] that Miss Cornell be starred in the picture.

This is a coup [illegible] one for United Artists, if the deal is put over. With Joseph Schenck in the saddle once more as the boss of United Artists, you may look to see many big deals. Things will shortly hum as they never have before at this studio.

"The Barretts of Wimpole Street" was the outstanding hit of New York this season.

Seen and Heard

Edward R. Tinker almost gave a dinner party. Some joker called up and invited several members of the film colony to dine at the Town House as Mr. Tinker's guests, 7:30 Thursday night. The voice over the telephone said "This is Henry, Mr. Tinker's valet." Some of us might have gone down all dressed up in our best if word had not gone out that the new president of the Fox Co. is leaving tomorrow night for New York. He happened to telephone me, else I might have been one of those who would have appeared on the scene in the imitation ermine coat and rhinestone jewels.

With reporters to right of him and reporters to left of him trying to get him to say something about the coming Talmadge-Schenck divorce, Gilbert Roland has kept himself diplomatically aloof. He was on a boat trip to Catalina with Mr. and Mrs. Buster Keaton [illegible] a few nights ago. He came back to sign a contract for an important role in "The Woman in Room 13" at Fox.

Gilbert Roland

Gilbert has worked steadily since it became apparent that his accent was in no way a hindrance. Funny thing about the Catalina trip. Natalie Keaton didn't expect to go. She went to the boat to say good-bye to Buster, Gilbert and Allan Tomblin who had planned a stag party. Buster thought it would be a good joke to Shanghai Natalie and Shanghai her he did. She left for Catalina without so much as a toothbrush or nightgown. The only wearing apparel she had with [illegible]

The shyness which Colleen Moore admits is prevented her from appearing on the stage before her film friends will have to be overcome. Colleen and the new husband, Al Scott, [illegible] here March 1 to begin rehearsals. She opens in Oakland, March 15, and that will only give her two weeks' time to get ready. After that comes a San Francisco appearance and then Los Angeles.

Maybe I'm Wrong (About Hollywood)

—By JOHN P. MEDBURY—

Hollywood, Feb. 19—A movie actor was sitting next to a pretty little blonde in a hotel the other evening and was trying to think up some way to start a conversation with her. Finally he hit on an idea.

"Didn't I see you out at the Universal Zoo yesterday?" he asked. "I really don't remember," replied the girl. "What cage were you in?"

Out of Focus

A fat man out here experiences a lot of difficulty in selecting suits of clothes—he's so hard to fit. He even has to have his umbrellas made to order.

Ten-Second Talkies

First Extra Girl: "What happened to that Northwest Mounted policeman that you used to correspond with?"

Second Extra Girl: "He had an accident. He was drowned while trailing his man through Venice."

Flash-Backs of Hollywood

A certain movie actress won't let her husband eat his lunch in her ritzy auto. She's afraid of getting mice in the car.

One of the restaurants here never attempts to remove the sand from the spinach. They leave it in to keep it from sliding off your plate.

One of our child stars got real inquisitive the other day and wanted to know who brought the first stork.

Dogs Stars of New Met Bill

One musician who literally "went to the dogs" is Jack Brancel, appearing at the Metropolitan in the "La Plaza" idea. It's all not as bad as it sounds however for Brancel and his pals have one of the cleverest novelty acts on the stage. His pals are two smooth haired English fox terriers, Jack and Jill, who perform feats of skill. No other dog act is like Brancel's.

Jack Brancel

"Kindness is the only formula to follow in training dogs," says Brancel. "I do not feet or whip either Jack or Jill in order to make them perform."

The Voice of Broadway

—By LOUIS SOBOL—

This Is How the Story Goes!

The headlines and the news stories announcing the ending of the Norma Talmadge-Joseph Schenck romance are rather amusing to [illegible] Broadway [illegible] The romance was [illegible] it was [illegible] The affair between Norma and Gilbert Roland was general [illegible] the rift between Norma and [illegible] has become [illegible] And the fact that Norma and George Jessel were almost inseparable during the few weeks the screen star spent in New York, was also generally known. Mr. Sobol for one made it his business to keep the public informed. It's the Talmadge-Jessel tie-up that I want to discuss.

A few months ago I was informed by someone who's usually accurate in his information that when the Talmadge gal had secured her divorce from Schenck she and Jessel would wed. I wired Jessel something to this effect: "Unless you notify me to the contrary, I shall print on Friday that you and Norma Talmadge will merge monikers as soon as both of you are in position to do so." Within an hour came a feverish denial from Jessel: "Absolutely no truth to that. We are the best of friends." But that night in the 5 o'clock club I saw the two together, conversing intimately and softly. So I went up to them and I said: "All kidding aside, aren't you two pretty much on the stove for each other?" Norma smiled. Jessel grinned. Norma spoke first.

"I think Georgie's awfully sweet," she purred, "but, Heavens, how can either one of us get married? My husband might not like it."

"My wife might have something to say about it," added George.

Well, of course, I insisted with my well known lack of diplomacy "there's always the possibility that both of you may be unwed shortly. I've heard something to that effect."

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said George, "if Norma and I ever plan to [illegible] I promise you I'll give you the first tip." And there the matter stood, with my pledge that I'd say nothing about it. And I haven't until today. But now the matter's been aired in the news columns and I can't see that I'm under any moral obligations to refrain from discussing a romance that concerns two nationally known people of the theater world.

The facts are simply this. When Norma's been in town she and Jessel have been inseparable. I used to go from night club to night club, from restaurant to restaurant, and whenever I caught a glimpse of the beautiful Talmadge profile I was sure to spot the well defined features of the Jessel lad, too. I can name you a dozen gentlemen who would be delighted to take the elbow of the soft Talmadge arm and guide her around town. I can name you a dozen gals—beautiful gals—who wouldn't spurn Mr. Jessel's invitation to sup and drink. In the face of that, the constant association of Mr. Jessel and Miss Talmadge has left but one conclusion—and, for some reason, I'm convinced it's the correct one. When their respective marital entanglements are unsnarled Mr. Jessel and Miss Talmadge will wed. Despite those denials.

That's Broadway!

There was a goodly crowd in Dinty Moore's Monday night and I detected an air of suppressed excitement the minute I entered. I wondered what was up, and then I noticed, over at a table against the rear partition, a quiet party dominated by a well known gentleman, Al Smith, who may or may not some day be President of the United States. I was wrong, of course. The presence of Al Smith in Dinty Moore's no longer occasions excitement. The real reason for the hum and buzz was the presence of a pretty girl in a blue outfit seated at a center table. A girl who [illegible] be President of the United States and wouldn't know what to do with the office if she did become President. Just a sweet gal who married a good looking chap and had a baby. And staring at her and then leaning over to whisper to his wife about her was the same Al Smith. The lass I'm referring to was Bebe Daniels.

Let 'Em Burn!

Speaking of Jack Dempsey's recent wire to William Demarest, the Vanities comedian, wagering $50 that he'd hotfoot Demarest before Demarest could hotfoot him, the Vanities comic wired back "Make that $100." All of which is of minor importance. Of course you all know what hotfooting is. Simply sticking matches in the heels and soles of your victim when he isn't looking and lighting them. What would interest me, however, is how the childish stunt originated. If you know, please send the information along.

RADIO COME BACKS DUE

Brokenshire on New Columbia Program

By N. F. T.

Some of the voice personalities identified with earlier days of broadcasting are definitely scheduled to be back on the air soon. Here is one of the most gratifying announcements made by radio rahjahs in many moons.

It would be hard to dig up better news than is passed along today with the signing of old Norman (How do you do) Brokenshire, a personality who has had considerable to do with making radio something worth while. Columbia Broadcasting System bosses are featuring Beau Brokenshire in a new presentation most likely heard here through WNAC or WAAB when it starts, which will be March 8, at 10 15 p. m.

MORE GLAD TIDINGS

Those jolly jesters, known as Jones and Hare, also jump back into the loudspeaker limelight next month. Commercial sponsorship and an NBC network of stations has been negotiated for them. Before getting under way, however, both boys start a tour of cities where their backer has factories. They board choo-choo cars for that purpose on March 7.

Angelo Patri Wins Nomination Today

ld Basis Still the Best

Going off the gold basis has failed to bring the British boom any cocksurely predicted. Nothing better than the gold dard has yet been trotted out. The United States does well emain "old-fashioned."

Expect gold to continue to flow from this country to France. figure that France could withdraw some $400,000,000 e. A considerable percentage of this has already been ear- ked—that is, deposited by the French bank in vaults here and aring, not as owned here but on the French bank's statemen

Nearly a year ago France deliberately instituted her policy ringing home gold. Conditions in Germany, in Britain and r countries were causing uneasiness. Moreover, France fig- that her attitude would cause other nations to become dis d to bow to her will. She had already learned how to use foreign balances as a political weapon.

Before she could take home her London funds Britain sus- nded gold payments. That spoiled the French game. It inflicted oss of almost a hundred million dollars on the French bank, mpelling the government to rush to the rescue.

Now New York is being drawn upon steadily and heavily. The t powerful banking interests here abruptly resented French at- pts at dictation.

litics Behind Finance Policy

The excuse offered by France for taking home her gold is at she fears gross currency inflation here, leading possibly to spension of gold payments. It is well known that the most in- ential authorities in France fear nothing of the kind. But nch politics perennially dominate French finance.

Both Washington and Wall Street agree that the sooner ceases to control an enormous amount of gold here, the tter. The liberalizing of our currency and credit facilities kes it possible to let France have all her gold without entail- g embarrassment.

Piling up of billions of idle gold is costing France a sweet nny. Naturally, it ceases to earn interest. How long France ll be able to afford the luxury of hoarding mountains of the llow metal remains to be seen. Her economic conditions, long inted as immune from the depression afflicting the rest of the orld, are becoming palpably bad.

Imagine a Republican president and a Democratic speaker the House vieing with each other in championing sweeping vernmental reorganization and economies! Are we really oing to have efficiency in government enough to benefit tax- ayers substantially?

D CONFER ON RACING

Boston's real politicians, the men who stand behind the scenes and pull the strings which make others persons of importance and prominence will be out in force next Thursday when the bill which would give the City Council very power over the mayor comes up for a hearing before the committee on cities in room 370, State House. The bill was introduced by Representative Lewis R. Sullivan of Ward 15, Dorchester, at the request of Councilor Francis F. Kelly, also of that district. An exciting hearing is expected.

MAY SWITCH

Possibility that former Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn will not enter the contest for sheriff of Suffolk County, and that instead he will seek election to the governor's council, loomed today. It was learned from an authoritative source that Roxbury's political generals feel there are too many avowed candidates for sheriff in sections where he is strongest politically and that those who would be his most bitter opponents for that office would be his most staunch supporters for the executive council.

METAL MARKET MORE ACTIVE

New York, Feb. 19—Sentiment following moves to ease the credit situation, especially by broadening the basis of Federal Reserve currency, had its reflection in increased activity in the metal markets during the week, Metal and Mineral Markets report. Copper rose a quarter of a cent to 6¼ cents Connecticut Valley basis. Foreign sales were good, although domestic demand showed comparatively little improvement.

Lead sales were better than average. The lead statistics were disappointing, however, and the St. Louis market was unsettled. Zinc, tin and silver all gained slightly during the week.

The attempt to bolster United States banking resources had the curious effect of greatly increasing foreign demand for copper, while the domestic market remained quiet. On Monday, all domestic transactions were on a 6⅛ per cent basis. Foreign sales were comparatively heavy, with the result that the official export price was established on Tuesday at 6¾ cents a pound c. i. f. basis.

LOOSE-WILES BISCUIT

Slackening demand, declining quotations for products and the trend of consumption to lower priced, less profitable lines are continuing to restrict operations. A sustained advance in consumption probably must await more favorable general trade conditions. Meanwhile, however, it is believed that operations will stabilize at around the average levels of last year.

The long term uptrend of profits was checked in 1930, when net income was reduced to $3.99 a share against $4.88 in 1929. In the first nine months of 1931, earnings amounted to $2.31 a share, which compared quite favorably with the $2.45 recorded in the corresponding 1930 period. For the full year 1931 we estimate that profits were equal to around $3.25 a common share. Net income per share of $7 preferred amounted to $70.07 in 1929, $[illegible] in 1930 and $37.93 in the first three quarters of 1931. A strong financial position and the present level of earnings warrant maintenance of the present $3 annual dividend on the common.

RAIL SOLUTION IS CALLED KEY TO PROSPERITY

By FRANK H. MELOON

This will interest railroad stockholders, patrons and employes of steam service and others. President Harry J. Haas of the American Bankers Assn. tells us he believes completion of the railroad industry's program will carry with it betterment for nearly all lines of business. He sees this solution likely to be at least partly effected through the medium of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. With carrier earnings as they are now, Mr. Haas does not believe public financing would be possible.

Robert J. Haas

Mr. Haas estimates the railroads of the United States will need about $105,000,000 to take care of obligations maturing this year. He holds that the sum named would not in itself be sufficient to give carriers the needed assistance. He finds the rails badly in need of money to [illegible] credit at equipment and general maintenance supplies.

The savings that would result from having proper railroad equipment, according to Mr. Haas, would enable the rails to pay interest on the investment and amortizing the cost over 15 years they would have the use of these locomotives, he points out, for an additional 15 or 15 years without cost.

Although the world pulp business was depressed during 1931 the writer is informed that all Swedish mills were sold out at the end of the year. A large part, perhaps half, of the Swedish product is marketed in the United States. Pulp is the main Swedish industry.

Berlin Boerse reopens March 1 without official price fixing, but publication of quotations is to be forbidden until after the presidential elections. What good will be done by banning printing of quotations we cannot see. Still the idea has been brought forward in our own country. When our opinion was asked a few months ago as to whether we thought it would be a good idea to stop printing over the counter bid and asked prices for textile shares, we registered an emphatic No.

Someone with a good imagination started the story that the ostrich, when pursued, hides its head in the desert sand. Keeping quotations on stocks or bonds from being known would, as we see it, be even more silly than the conduct falsely attributed to the bird of rich plumes.

Boston & Maine has been able to run but two Snow Train excursions this year on account of lack of snow, which has caused a half dozen postponements. Considering the expense of removing snow from the tracks, etc., this has been by no means an unmixed evil, as stockholders who study the road's reports will see. The first snow trip to Lincoln, N. H., carried 1631 passengers, the second to Laconia had 1594.

Next Sunday a "Snow Train" will be run to Wilton, N. H., where the "Winter Carnival" will be on its third day. Dog races, wood chopping contests, hockey, ski races, etc., are features. Monday the Snow Train Mecca will be North Conway, which enjoys the double distinction of being a leading summer resort and a leading winter place of entertainment.

Winter sports are an increasing source of income for rural sections of New England. Switzerland won the initial fame in this field. We believe it was Mark Twain himself, a summer resident of New England, staying at York, Me., who called the White Mountains the "Switzerland of America." The noted Hiram Ricker of Poland Spring fame a few years ago gave temperature comparisons as a result of a series of studies which showed that the Pine Tree State was well adapted for winter sports. He found the average temperature of Maine about one degree warmer in winter than that of Switzerland.

Food Price Index Holds Unchanged

New York, Feb. 19—Bradstreet's weekly food index repeated last week's figure and registered $1.80 for the week ending Feb. 18. As the normal expected variation for this week is a decrease of 0.8 per cent the fact that the index held steady may be regarded as favorable.

After four months of almost continuous decline this is the second time within the last four weeks that the index has repeated the figure of the preceding week, indicating that while at 1 extremely low price level, it is at much firmer than they have been for some time. The index represents the sum total of the prices per pound of 31 foods in common demand.

Weekly price changes in Bradstreet's list of 87 selected commodities show that 14 were higher than the preceding week, 12 were lower and 61 remained unchanged. This compares favorably with last week's changes when 4 were higher, 23 lower and 60 remained the same.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

RECOVERY of 1½ points in Johns-Manville appeared to be attributed to speculative selling on the idea that the short interest has been substantially reduced. The stock is also being affected by latest reports that 1931 earnings to be made public around March 1 will make less favorable comparison with the year previous than originally anticipated.

Johns Mansville Net Below $1 on Common

Current estimates indicate net will be in the neighborhood of 90 cents a share on the common or slightly less than dividend requirements of $1 a share. These predictions indicate the final quarter of the year produced a sizable deficit inasmuch as official nine months figures showed $1.08 per share.

Increased Activity in Simms Petroleum

Current activity in Simms Petroleum reflects a change in market sponsorship for the stock based on the retirement of 100,000 shares under the company's repurchase offer late last year.

January Auto Sales Statistics Analyzed

Interesting statistics in automobile sales for January are now at St. reports, interests close to the bear out the optimistic predictions of the industry during the New York show early in the month. The figures now available show new passenger car registrations below those for the corresponding month of 1931. For example, new Auburns registered in fifteen states last month totaled 152, compared with 453 cars in January, 1931, a decline of about 69 percent. Chevrolet's registrations totaled 9142 and 11,100 cars for the comparative period and Ford 3284 for the recent period against 8738 in January a year ago.

Union Carbide Dividend Outlook

Paramount Publix Stock Deal Hinted

According to unconfirmed Wall St. reports interests close to the Paramount Publix Corporation are anxious to acquire the private stock holdings of the company's leading executive. It is understood the purchasing group is bidding substantially above the market for these shares but the present owner is said to be demanding a much higher price. Another development understood to be under contemplation by the company is the sale of its half interest in Columbia Broadcasting Company.

Switching Is Noted in Railroad Stocks

Unexpected omission of the Southern Pacific dividend caused considerable switching throughout the railroad section of the market. Transactions of that nature were reported from Pennsylvania into Northern Pacific on the theory that the latter offers the greatest attraction at the moment. Pennsylvania earned around $1 a share last year whereas Northern Pacific reported $3.59 a share, including about $2 a share received as a special dividend from a subsidiary. Northern Pacific pays $1 more in dividends than Pennsylvania.

Bonus Paid for Selling Kresge?

It was reported that commissions ranging from 62½ to 87½ cents a share were being paid for distribution of S. S. Kresge shares.

Copper Dividend Omissions Viewed

Dividend omissions by various copper producing companies this week did not cause much surprise in the financial district. Such action had been anticipated because of the low price for the red metal and the lack of buying, which was certain to be reflected in earnings of these companies, making a payment at this time unwarranted. There was a moderate increase in the foreign demand for copper at periods during the week, according to some trade authorities. A larger domestic demand will depend entirely upon resumption of industrial activity and better business conditions.

Buying in American Rolling Mill Recently

Many students are holding the opinion that smaller independent steel companies with special lines for which there should be an improved demand will stage a more rapid comeback than many of the larger units, which have such vast investments in the heavier products, such as structural steel, rails, etc. On this theory there has been a moderate amount of buying in American Rolling Mills recently.

Stock Has Been Thoroughly Liquidated

The stock has been thoroughly liquidated and deflated. Earnings for 1931 will be poor, but any improvement in sheet steel consumption will be of benefit to the company. The continuous process, which is controlled by "Armco" and leased to other steel makers, still is viewed as an important factor for the future of the company.

Accidents Sixth Principal Cause of Deaths
Rate Has Increased Almost 18 Per Cent
Safety Effort Must Remove Causes
Auto Fatalities Total 34,400

By Frank F. Loomis

Mortality statistics show accident as the sixth principal cause of deaths in the United States. The death rate from accidents during the past 10 years has increased almost 18 per cent.

Automobile accident deaths, exclusive of deaths from collision of automobiles with trains and street cars, increased more than 100 per cent in rate per hundred thousand. The death rate from accidental falls increased 28 per cent; from mine accidents 15 per cent and 11 per cent from machinery accidents.

Accidents do not have to happen. They can usually be avoided. In other words, every time an accident occurs it is an indication that some person was careless or that there was something done to contribute to it, as every accident is caused. Intelligent safety effort, therefore, must be directed toward a removal of the cause of accidents.

It is deplorable to think that such a thing as carelessness has been responsible for nearly 100,000 deaths last year. The pity of it is that most of these killings should never have happened if the proper care had been exercised by those concerned in the accidents.

If some disaster had taken place on any particular day during the year and as a result 100,000 persons were killed, the entire world would be shocked to think that such a thing could happen.

Investigations would be conducted to determine the cause and responsibility, punishment would be meted out to those found guilty of negligence and a movement would be instituted to remedy the conditions to prevent a recurrence of such a calamity.

Accidents during 1931, causing personal injuries and death, were responsible for the payment of $560,000,000. In addition to the approximate 100,000 accidental deaths last year, 12,000,000 were injured.

Automobile accidents resulting in deaths and non-fatal injuries in the United States in 1931 totalled 860,000. The deaths numbered 34,400, while the number of persons who suffered non-fatal injuries totalled 997,[illegible], making the death and injury toll of automobile accidents alone 1,032,300.

The annual economic loss due to auto accidents is $2,500,000. More than the cost of public school education in the United States; five times the country's average yearly fire loss.

Such is the annual consequences of America's automobile accidents—the deaths, the injuries that disable for life and the injuries from which the victims will recover, the damage to property, is a per capita cost of $20. Two billion, five hundred million dollars—a sum now wasted because of the consequences of automobile accidents—incomprehensible wealth that could be put to better use.

There has been a decided increase in automobile accidents in this country in fifteen years. For the five year period ended in 1921, the death toll was 58,552; for five years ended in 1926, 98,551 and the five years ended in 1931, the death toll from automobile accidents was 152,732.

At this rate of increase, what will our automobile accident deaths be for the next five years ending in 1936? During the 10 year period in which the rate of deaths from automobile accidents, excluding collisions from trains and street cars increased more than 100 per cent, the rate of deaths from smallpox decreased more than 85 per cent; from diphtheria, nearly 63 per cent; from typhoid and paratyphoid fever, 53 per cent and from tuberculosis, more than 23 per cent.

This percentage increase in rate of death from automobile accidents, as stated above, has been far greater than the increases in the rate of deaths from all other accidents and also far greater than the percentage increases in rates of heart disease, cancer or cerebral hemorrhage.

What has been done in reducing the rates of death from some other causes or in keeping them within comparatively slight increases is also possible of accomplishment as respects deaths from automobile accidents.

At least nine out of every ten automobile accidents, which in 1931 caused the death of 34,400 persons and injury of nearly a million others, resulted from human errors of drivers and pedestrians.

The Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford, Ct., has prepared an interesting booklet titled "Tremendous Trifles," which gives impressive statistics and facts on 1931's loss of life and limbs in automobile accidents, from which the above figures were taken.

This booklet, containing tables, figures and charts on the causes of automobile accidents in the United States in 1931 and the extended consequences of them, has been published by the Travelers solely for the purpose and with the hope that a more widespread knowledge of the facts will cause more persons, than heretofore, to regard the problem as a personal one. In such a point of view is to be found real hope that the situation can be improved.

—STATE ST.— Hears:

That the shorts who persisted in ignoring advice to cover were led to slaughter just as the lambs of 1929, who overstayed their market. Vital as the short selling ban is, there is a disposition among professional leaders to accept all profits and withdraw from the markets pending a quieting of those governed by hysteria.

The Situation

By now it is apparent to unbiased observers that strong interests are behind the current strength in the various markets. The strategy of these big bulls has been to keep the small short securely trapped. They received unexpected aid in the form of scale selling orders from those who persisted in fighting the advance. As a result, the reactionary periods were limited as to time and magnitude, for the constructive element was reluctant to yield the advantage gained. Now, within reach of the critical area, bears felt that they could not negotiate; they have a nervous and none too confident bear party up against the wall. The plan as outlined to this space is to make the sellers, financially weakened, supply the needed buying power to put prices above the triple top, as shown on the Dow-Jones industrial index.

The excellent way in which the bulls have managed their campaign is illustrated in reports of their current long position. Heavy lines of long stock, taken at the lows, have been materially lightened. More stock will be disposed of on strength to supply the resources to stem selling drives when a real setback does develop.

Woolen Preferred

Accompanied by rumors that the best people were buyers, American Woolen preferred has marched definitely higher on a good turnover. The reason apparently lies in the proposal to reduce the par value of the common shares from $100 to $5. This arrangement is said to make possible the transfer of sufficient funds to set up a book surplus of $38,000,000. Analysts say this means a saving of around $650,000 a year in carrying charges. This money could either be used to pay off back dividends of $35 a share on the preferred or to buy the stock in the open market.

Since the amendments to the bylaws which would permit the open market purchase of Woolen preferred by the management have yet to be ratified, competent advisers are against too much buying enthusiasm on further strength.

Boardroom Briefs

Much profit taking is reported to be taking place in Gillette . . . This is happening at a time when the promised good new is out . . . A 12-point rise is enough for most traders . . . Followers of the motors are awaiting the announcement of an aluminum chassis in connection with the front wheel drive spoken of here yesterday . . . As mentioned then Graham Paige seems to have the inside track but Hupmobile may cut them out, according to informants . . . Incidentally the same people who perfected floating power are said to have conceived the new car . . . Also, Aluminum Company of America is believed to have put a quarter of a million into the experiments.

Best Co. made a record last year that is creating enthusiasm for the capital stock. Asset ratio was brought up from 4 to 1 in 1930 to 16 to 1 in 1931.

Square "D" Co. Net Equals 77c Share

Square "D" Co. and subsidiaries for 1931 report a net profit of $78,443 after depreciation and Federal taxes, equal to 77 cents a share on 100,728 shares of $2.20 class A preferred. In the preceding year, the company reported a net profit, including operation of Diamond Electrical Manufacturing Co. Ltd., acquired during 1930, for the full year, of $93,573, equal to 98 cents a share on the class A preferred.

STOCKS HIGHER ON NEW SHORT DECISION

New York, Feb. 19—The new decision of the New York Stock Exchange governors to restrict further the mounting practice of short selling resulted in a violent opening rally today. Prices soared from 1 to 7 points over a broad list in very active trading.

After the initial flurry of short covering had exhausted itself, about half the new net gains were erased.

SECOND HOUR GAINS

In the second period or better gains were seen for Western Union, Westinghouse Electric, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Pacific Gas, Pacific Light, Peoples Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Rock Island, General Railway Signal, Drug, Du Pont, General Foods, American Telephone, North American, Ingersoll-Rand, Johns-Manvill and American Tobacco "B."

At the same time there were advances of 2 to 3 points for Coca-Cola, Consolidated Gas of New York, Eastman Kodak, U S Steel, Allied Chemical, J. I. Case and Auburn Auto. American Tobacco was up more than 3 and International Business Machines mounted nearly 5 at the same time.

There were numerous large blocks among the first hours' transfers. Some of the initial blocks and the overnight gains were as follows:

10,000 shares of American Can at $73, up $3.75.

5000 American Telephone, $136.75, up $3.

5000 Allied Chemical, 83.50, up $5.

7000 New York Central, $33.87, up $2.

5000 U. S. Steel, $52.50, up $3.

3400 Union Carbide, $34.37, up $2.

2500 Western Union, $50, up $3.

2300 Standard Oil of New Jersey $28.37, up $1.

1400 Eastman Kodak, $84.73, up $7.

1500 Loew's, $32.62, up $2.

2300 Bethlehem Steel, $23.75, up $1.25.

5000 General Electric, $24, up $1.

2000 Consolidated Gas of New York, $65.50, up $2.

2000 American Tobacco "B," $83.75, up $3.75.

QUIET ON SETBACK

Heavy covering by traders who had been frightened by the latest exchange rule affecting short selling gave the market spectacular buoyancy in the first 15 minutes, when volume was enormous. However, profit-taking promptly appeared and the demand from shorts subsided, bringing the swift reaction.

The market, however, became quiet on this setback. The ticker which at 10.20 a. m., or 20 minutes after the opening, had been four minutes behind trading on the floor, easily caught up with transactions.

SALES LIKE SATURDAY'S

Sales in the first half hour approximated 700,00 shares, duplicating the volume fo that period last Saturday.

The violent opening had been foreshadowed by yesterday's late rally on San Francisco markets and also by this morning's strong London opening. Traders had rushed covering orders to those exchanges yesterday when vague rumors of a new ruling swept through the financial district, so that the New York Stock Exchange prices, despite Thursday's last hour advance, were far out of line with quotations on the other markets.

The ruling, announced by the exchange governors last night, requires that, effective April 1, member firms must obtain the written consent of customers before the latters' stocks shall be loaned to traders who seek to borrow the shares to make delivery against short commitments.

The Stock Exchange announcement was enthusiastically received by most brokerage houses although brokers were inclined to the opinion that more time would be necessary before the full effect could be judged.

WHEAT AT NEW SEASON'S TOP

Chicago, Feb. 19 (AP)—In a general rush of buying, wheat jumped today to a new high price record for the season. Upturns in securities at New York and in wheat quotations at Liverpool were incentives to purchase grains.

Opening ⅝-1¼ up, Chicago wheat futures afterward reacted somewhat from the initial top level. Corn started at ⅛-⅜ advance and subsequently eased a little. Prices.

Wheat—March 59; May, 62⅜-⅝; July, 63⅝-⅞; September, 65⅜-⅝.

Corn—March, 37⅛; May, 41-41⅛; July, 43½-⅝; September, 44⅛.

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

MAY PORTEND CHANGE

J. W., Wellesley—What is the present status of Lehn & Fink? Do you consider the stock a good investment?

Ans.—Lehn & Fink has paid the current $3 dividend since Dec. 1, 1925. It was covered in 1930 by earnings of $4.07 a share, compared with $4.10 in 1929. Unofficial estimate for 1931 is around $3.50 a share. A yield of 12 per cent. at recent levels, may portend downward revision in the dividend rate.

MAY BE LOWER

O. F., Medford—I am a working man and bought 11 shares Borden at 76. What do you think of it?

Ans.—The present Borden Company has paid dividends with extras, from 1901. The regular annual rate now is $3 a share. It was covered in 1930 by earnings of $5.12 a share, against $5.50 in 1929. Net income for 1931 will probably be affected by prices reductions and smaller volume of sales. We do not know where the stock will sell.

'Gas' Tax Opposed by U. S. Oil Leaders

New York, Feb. 19—The board of directors of the American Petroleum Institute has adopted a resolution protesting against the proposed federal gasoline tax of one cent a gallon. Statistical data showed that although the industry has succeeded in keeping crude oil production at a proper level and in holding refinery runs in check, there has been a nincrease in gasoline stocks which was taken to indicate a decrease in the consumption of gasoline in recent weeks.

Copper Mine to Continue Operations

Brussels, Feb. 19—The government is unwilling to shut down Katanga copper production if Americans should propose a world-wide shutdown because the life of the Province of Katanga and, to a lesser degree, of the entire colony depends on activity of Union Minere du Haut Katanga. It is stated Union Miniere is still producing at a profit and is unwilling to consent to further sacrifices.

$330,000,000 For Construction

The Bell System's gross construction program for 1932 will aggregate $330,000,000, against $389,000,000 for 1931. Most of the money will be spent for replacements and betterments.

It is understood American Telephone & Telegraph Co. closed 1931 with more than $250,000,000 in cash and short-time securities and that it will be in excellent position to make advances if necessary to associated companies without new financing. Position of C. & O. Viewed a[illegible] Stronger by Cousins

By W. S. COUSINS

New York, Feb. 19—Strengthening of the position of the Chesapeake and Ohio as the king pin of the greater Nickel Plate system is seen in Wall Street as the result of its purchase this week of 16,[illegible]00 shares of Pere Marquette common stock from the Alleghany corporation.

When the Interstate Commerce Commission turned down the original Nickel Plate consolidation plan, acceding to the strong protests of the minority stockholders of Chesapeake and Ohio, the Van Sweringen brothers shifted their line of attack so as to make this road the keystone of all future merger projects.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad has been a good money-maker, except in periods when coal transportation falls off heavily, as in the present year. The company's lines extend from the coal fields of West Virginia and Eastern Kentucky eastward to the Atlantic seaboard at Newport News, Virginia, and westward to Louisville, Chicago and Valley Crossing near Columbus, Ohio, where its hooks up with the Hocking Valley division.

This road already controls the Pere Marquette through its holdin[illegible] of 266,200 shares of common sto[illegible] It owns 660,300 shares of Erie, an[illegible] [illegible] the 1[illegible] shares of N[illegible] Plate common have been tr[illegible] ferred it will hold 49 per cent [illegible] the total outstanding voti[illegible] strength of that important roa[illegible] the original unit in the Nickel Plate merger.

The rise of the Van Sweringen brothers, two young real estate promoters, of Cleveland, Ohio, to [illegible] pinnacle of prominence in rail[illegible] world, where they later acqu[illegible] the financial backing of the mo[illegible] powerful banking group in Ameri[illegible] ca, is one of the outstanding romances of American industry.

When the Van Sweringen "boys" added Missouri Pacific to their railroad chain, the conclusion was hastily arrived at that the f[illegible] transcontinental railroad system was definitely assured. Nothing was not needed, according to those who gave the matter only superficial consideration but to hook up with Missouri Pacific's steel rail at Chicago or St Louis and form a [illegible] connection from coast to coast.

From the practical standpoint, nothing of a startling nature wo[illegible] have been accomplished by such [illegible] hook-up. Transcontinental passengers over any of the regular routes have been able to charter trains for coast-to-coast trips and have not worried about the manner in which their cars were shunted from one system to another.

Unfortunately, the business depression of the last two years has halted the progress of the four-group agreement for unification of railroad lines in Eastern territory. The agreement was announced with the [illegible] of President Hoover on December 31, 1930, and [illegible] in that [illegible] nated the so-called Lorree [illegible]

This group, including Delaware & Hudson and its affiliates, was to have been the center of the "fifth trunk-line" into New York. Under the plan, Lehigh Valley would be linked with the Van Swerigens' and Lackawanna would go to the New York Central.

The railroads have been very much in the limelight in recent months. The large falling off in revenues, the boosting of freight rates and the successful negotiation of the 10 per cent wage cut are surface indications of the vexing financial problems faced by the railroad executives in recent [illegible] Sentiment with respect to the benefits of consolidation is still far from unanimous.

CURB MARKET MOVES UP

New York, Feb. 19—The Curb market made emphatic response to the latest stock exchange edict against short selling in the forepart of today's session, with large scale demand for the run of speculative favorites carrying the price averages to new peak levels for the year.

Consolidated Gas of Baltimore led a buoyant utility group up the line with a spurt of 3⅜ points to a new top for 1932. American Gas & Electric was up 1⅛ points, Electric Bond & Share pushed ahead ⅛, Brazil Traction moved in o new high territory with a fractional upturn, while gains of similar proportions were prevalent in the rank and file of low priced issues.

Cities Service took an active participation in the advance, rising spiritedly to 6⅛, the best price it has reached since the turn of the year.

[illegible] was the outstanding feature in a general upturn in the specialty shares, shooting up 4⅛ points. Parker Rustproof rose 2½ points, while Aluminum chalked up a two-point gain.

Humble stood out in a moderately improved oil list, scoring a gain of almost a point to a new top for the year. Gulf was up ⅛ and Standard of Indiana was ⅜ higher.

Universal Products Earns $1.08 Share

New York, Feb. 19—Universal Products Co. for the year 1931 reports a net profit of $99,132 after depreciation, Federal taxes, etc., equal to $1.08 a share on 91,320 shares of common, as against $47,303, or 50 cents a share on 93,720 shares in 1930.

Bower Bearing Co. Net Income Lower

New York, Feb. 19—Bower Roller Bearing Co. for the year 1931 reports a net profit of $231,190 after charges and Federal taxes equal to 96 cents a shar[illegible] [illegible]9,701 [illegible] as against $442[illegible] 1930.

Gillette Resumes Dividend Payments

Directors of Gillette Safety Razor Company resumed dividend payments on the common stock, with the declaration of a dividend of 25 cents a share payable March 31, to stock of record March 1.

This marks the first dividend payment by the company since January 1, 1931, when "a dividend" of $1 a share was paid, following omission of payments entirely in the final quarter of 1930. Prior to that, the rate had been $5 a share annually.

Hale Bros. Stores Earns 69c Share

y, American Athletic Depression Is Over

"Oh didn't our youth drive home this truth
To the wide world, there and then—
The Yankee grade is the best man made
In the moulds of the God of men!"

part of the [illegible] John O'Keefe [illegible] the acment of his blooming lyre following the triumphs of the ry boys in the London Olympics of [illegible]. From recent perances of the limber-legged [illegible] ncle Sam, it looks as if John would have to get out the [illegible] and do a bit of vocalizing at Los Angeles next summer. D[illegible] t decade America suffered a sort of an athletic depression antedated the financial one. Instead of [illegible] the best in good old-fashioned way, the Old Glory team barely won by skin of its teeth at the last Olympics. Flying Finns, speedy edes, fleet Frenchmen and even saffron skinned Orientals ped away with events hitherto labeled made for America at the last Olympics Uncle Sam only took one lonely [illegible] track event! But the athletic depression is over now and s hoping the financial one soon will be also and our reverses past and put behind. They didn't concede our skaters any a chance in the Winter Olympics, but the Old Glory boys came gh and stood the Norwegians, Finns, Swedes and Canucks heads at their own game. And by the way Gene Venzke Sexton, Georgie Spitz and others are wrecking the Record k and rough housing Father Time the real Olympics at Los eles next summer only will be a repetition of the Winter es at Lake Placid. Yes, John O'Keefe better be tuning his lyre oiling his larynx once again.

If we felt that way we might mount the fence and crow "We d you so!" about Spitz, Venzke and Sexton. The Boston Eveg American told you all about Georgie, Gene and Leo BEFORE y wrecked the records, not simply after it, just as the Boston ening American fastened the label on Ernie Schaaf, Al Heist d other scrappers BEFORE the rest of the gang started chanting g tribute for the housetops. Being a jump ahead of the field is old, old habit with your favorite newspaper.

Of especial gratification to the fans on the Atlantic seaboard is the success of our Eastern athletes over the Western. The athletic glory that was East went West a decade ago. In the early days of athletics the East boasted the majority of the champions. But in the last 10 or 15 years the balance shifted West and the Pacific slope gained the preponderance of athletic power. Now the balance, it would appear from the feats of Spitz, Sexton and Venzke, has swung East again. We effete Easterners at least have regained sufficient athletic prestige to hold the wild and woolly Westerners on even terms.

Before we Easterners get crowing too loud, it must be remembered that this is the indoor athletic season. Most of the indoor competition is Eastern. It's the dull athletic period in the West. With the advent of the outdoor season the West will wake up. By the good old summer time you can expect some astounding performances from the boys from the sun kissed slopes of the Rockies.

But the West isn't likely to raise a high jumper who will beat Georgie Spitz, or a shot putter who will heave the 16 pound ball a greater distance than Leo Sexton, or a miler who will step eight furlongs in faster time than Gene Venzke. After watching the Mercury Foot greyhound at the Casey Meet we told you he would step a mile in 4:10. He did. Now we want to go on record as saying that under right competitive, track and weather conditions, Gene Venzke will run a mile in 4:08 or better.

SOME SWEET DAY!
"4:08, B'GOSH!"
VENZKE
CHRIS DALTON

That 4:10 mile of Gene's last Wednesday night was far from a perfect one. Four times during the race Venzke looked around to see where Lermond was [illegible] Each time Gene looked around he lost in distance a fraction of a second. If he hadn't kept looking around on Wednesday night Venzke would have cracked [illegible] as sure as you're born. On another day in another race Venzke will do no looking around. He will have no thoughts but the finishing line and when he reaches his feet's objective and his heart's desire he will be clocked in 4:08 or better. Some sweet day Gene will do it. Wait and see.

Venzke so far has been perfectly trained, perfectly handled. The same can not be said of our Leo Lermond. Leo has been running too hard, too often. He wasn't "pointed" rightly for the Baxter Mile. The Hunter Mile in [illegible] four days previous took too much out of him. To get the best from himself, Leo shouldn't have run more than three quarters of his distance within five days of the race.

The Boston Evening American told you Sexton would be [illegible] Brix again and told you if anyone could beat Eric Hirschfeld's world's record it was the former Georgetown collegian. Two days after the prophesy, Sexton made good. We repeat, sooner or later the giant Mercury Footer is going to pass the coveted 53-foot mark. TWO TORONTO N. H. L. CLUBS PLANNED

By BILL GRIMES

[illegible]

"Yes, I feel confident that there will be two N. H. L. clubs representing Toronto in the N. H. L. next year," replied Smythe, when queried on the current rumor.

"In my opinion, there is not a better hockey city in Canada or the 'States' than Toronto. We are overrun with amateur leagues, and the public is entitled to another big league club. We now have one of the finest rinks on the circuit with a seating capacity of 12,500, and we have been grossing $30,000 regularly.

Maple Leafs to Benefit If Other Club Is Formed

"If responsible parties sponsor the new club, the Maple Leafs will waive their territorial rights. The Leafs will benefit from an intra-city rivalry and will derive good financial returns from rentals of the Toronto Garden.

"As I understand it, the backers of the new club plan to take over the Ottawa franchise and players who are now scattered around the N. H. L. Already I have been 'propositioned' to put a price on King Clancy, for whom we paid $35,000 to the Ottawa club.

"Although I may be wrong from what I have overheard, I suspect that the new Toronto club will be as far as possible an all Irish outfit, and if so, it will not only be an innovation but also a great box office attraction on the road as well as at home."

"The depression has had no noticeable effect on the attendance as far as the Maple Leafs are concerned. Possibly it was a break for us that we shifted from the old Arena to the Garden this season, but at any rate we have been packing them in for every game. If the sponsors of the new club base their decision on the financial return of the Maple Leafs, I cannot see any reason for not going through with the proposition.

Fast Sextet Could Be Built in Short Time

"With a nucleus of star players such as King Clancy, Frank Finnigan, Bill Touhey, Hec Kilrea, Joe Lamb, Alex Smith and Alex Connell, it would not require much time or money to build a winning combination.

"Also, I have it on good authority that the new Toronto team will be coached by the best developer of young talent in hockey, but unfortunately I cannot divulge his name, without breaking a confidence.

"As it will be to the advantage of the Maple Leafs to be opposed by a strong local rival, we will gladly lend any assistance possible, until such a time as the new organization is in a position to carry on unaided. Doubtless the new club will also be able to get such worthwhile assistance from the N. H. L.

"Although the Ottawa Senators did not meet with any noticeable success during their last season in the N. H. L., the players are capable of playing better hockey than they displayed a year ago. Conditions in the capital were not conducive to winning hockey due to the action of the fans, whose civic pride was hurt through the poor success of the Senators.

"Personally, I hope that this proposition will go through, primarily because I am firmly convinced that the Toronto public is entitled to more big league hockey and secondly because two clubs in Toronto would greatly strengthen the National Hockey League."

The old Man Killer, JACK DEMPSEY, fighting his way back along the Come Back Trail, found the scaling of KING LEVINSKY too much for him in Chicago, last night. Levinsky's youth and wallop proved too much for the old Manassa Mauler. The defeat saddened the sports public. The world was with the Tiger in his attempt to rescale ring heights.

Now the report is that George Owen will join the Bruins in Chicago on Sunday. The former Harvard star was listed to accompany the team West but due to sickness was unable to get away until tomorrow.

[illegible]

It is at least a strange condition of affairs that teams tied in the N. H. L. standings are meeting so frequently.

Although the Bruins were tipped off to Art Coulter a year ago the Chicago Blackhawks beat them to the Philadelphia right winger who will be a great asset to the Windy City aggregation.

When the Bruin Cubs take the New Haven Eagles next Thursday night at the Garden Eddie Powers will have no less than sixteen players and two goalies to juggle around. It requires a calculating pilot to handle that number of players and Powers is one of the few managers capable of carrying out such an assignment.

MAT WIN OVER McLEOD FAILS TO PLEASE GUS

SONNY FEELS HE DESERVES TITLE TILT

Jack Conway Wins Again With Aid of Magic Coin

Jack Conway's magic coin is still working successfully. It called the turn on Gus Sonnenberg's victory over Farmer George McLeod at the Arena.

Conway's 1932 record follows:

W	L	P. C.

By JACK CONWAY

Back in the dressing room Gus Sonnenberg let loose a loud growl after he defeated Farmer George McLeod in two straight falls at a Paul Bowser show at the Arena.

The old Dynamiter won the first toss with a flying tackle in 31 minutes 30 seconds, while he fooled McLeod by using an inside crotch hold and slam to gain the second fall in 5 minutes 55 seconds.

One would think that Gus would have been in good humor following such a decisive victory. Such, however, was not the case.

"It looks as if I'm in the middle," piped Sonny. "I have been chasing DeGlane since he won from me at Braves Field last summer. I have not lost a single match on my drive towards another championship match Do you know that by whipping McLeod I made it four victories this week? I have been in action every night.

"Now Bowser has signed Browning and DeGlane for next Thursday night. Where does that leave me? Out in left field if you happen to want to know.

"I figure Browning will win the title. He would have beaten DeGlane last time only for some questionable work on the Frenchman's part. DeGlane can't expect to get away with the same rough stuff again. And as champion Browning will go on a barnstorming tour around the country. He'll take on second and third raters and let me wait until I grow whiskers.

Sonny Sore Because Browning Gets Big Fray

"This is a h—— of a deal for me. If there is one wrestler I can whip it's DeGlane, but now Browning is going to beat me o the job."

Jack Elliot, Gus' brother-in-law, did his best to cool the wrath of the former champion.

Pa John D. Elliot stepped into the dressing room, and announced that there wasn't any truth to the charge he influenced Rep. William Madden of Roxbury to present his wrestling bill. Pa Elliot asserted that Paul Bowser has done more than any other man to bring wrestling to its present high point of popularity.

"Paul's a fine fellow," chimed in Sonny, "but I would feel better towards him if he had forced DeGlane to meet me before tackling Browning."

A few minutes later Sonny stormed out into the night.

Tackle Paves Way to Sonny's Victory

When McLeod got back into the ring, he was in poor condition. Sonny roughed him up and pinned him with his second tackle.

When warfare was resumed, McLeod was tossed about by Sonny like a cork on an angry sea. While McLeod was watching out for the butt and tackle, the old Dynamiter rushed him, scored with an inside crotch and body slam and called it a night.

If the DeGlane-Browning match had not been announced, Sonny would have been as happy as a lark. Even a former champ must have his disappointments. Dempsey probably didn't feel any too good after his little affair with the old Kingfish in Chicago.

Jack Sherry and Panther Joe Malcewicz, my idea of two great wrestlers breezed 30m. to a draw.

Pat McKay and Harry Cornsweet were even at the end of 10m.

Rudy Raditz and Mike Miller were running even at the end of 10m.

Frank Yusko and Raoul Simon went 10m. to a draw.

The crowd cheered frantically when it was announced Deglane and Browning would clash for the title next Thursday night. The rival wrestlers were introduced and took a bow.

BRUINS TIE FALCONS

Detroit, Feb. 19—The Boston Bruins played a scoreless tie here with the Falcons in an N. H. L. contest.

The tie left the Bruins, Falcons and Blackhawks in a triple tie for second place in the American division of the league.

The game was close all the way, but only the great goaltending of Tiny Thompson of the Bruins saved his club. The best action came toward the close of the third period, when the Falcons fought to score. In the overtime the play was slow and cautious.

Hockey Giggles

—By BILL GRIMES—

During one of their recent trips here to play the Bruin Cubs, the Springfield Indians put up at the Hotel Manger and as usual the players took to their beds to rest up after their long bus ride from the City of Homes.

One of "Rocky" Stone's many duties is to leave calls for the players, which he did, telling the day operator to wake Alfie Moore at seven o'clock.

The Indians went to the Garden and just before eight o'clock Manager Frank Moore discovered that Alfie Moore was not in the dressing room.

Some of the players were of the opinion that they had seen Alfie in the Garden and that he was waiting with some tickets for some friends. By the time that it was certain that Moore was not in the building, it was too late to make further search for him.

Stone, who pinch hits as a goal minder, was ordered to don the pads and guard the nets, which he did, and the Indians were on the short end of a 4-to-1 game.

After the game, Frank Carroll went out in search of his missing goal tender. Inquiry at the desk of the hotel manager brought out the fact that there was a seven o'clock call left for Moore, but there was nothing to indicate whether it was a p. m. or an a. m. call, and as the operators seldom received seven p. m. calls, she had allowed Alfie to sleep, which he did, right through the game.

Providence Cycle Team Faces Boston

The fast Providence motorcycle polo team meets the Boston team at the Arena on Monday night. In over 30 games, two thirds of which were victories, only one Providence substitute has been used. The regular lineup consists of Tom Gray, goal; Robert Hand, right forward; Joe Angaveno, center, and Cal Hand, left forward. The only spare is Ralph Frebee.

Boston has secured a new goal guard, Herb Fishlock, a local boy who has been playing in New Jersey for the past two seasons.

QUINN STILL GAMBLING ON ROOKIES

By JOE CASHMAN

President Bob Quinn of the Red Sox is still gambling.

He has added three rookies without minor league experience to his payroll.

They are Pitchers John Reder and Syver Slaalein and Catcher Walter Sasse.

Reder is a Fall River youngster who is well known to all soccer fans. He guards the goal for the New Bedford Whalers, and is rated as the greatest goalie in the business.

Slaalein is a Minnesota collegian. What, if anything, he has done to warrant being taken to Savannah, we don't know.

Sasse Is Cleveland Sandlots Product

Sasse comes from Cleveland and is a product of the same sandlots which have sent George Uhle and Joe Vosmik, among others, to the big show.

After taking ten Greater Boston semipro stars South last spring and finding but one worth holding, the Fenway "prexy" determined to waste no more time or money on inexperienced material.

However, he weakened long enough last fall to take on Bob Barr, young Newton pitcher, and then after sending out the 1932 roster, decided to add the names of Reder, Slaalein and Sasse.

For the first time in several weeks, the mailman failed to leave a signed contract at the Sox offices today.

Only four of the gang are still outside the fold, Pitchers Danny MacFayden and Jack Russell; Infielder Wally Doshiell, and Outfielder George Stumpf.

Miss Orcutt, by virtue of the sparkling manner in which she has advanced to the last round, was given a slight advantage in the dope to conquer, the national titleholder.

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella—
Are cucumbers pickles?
—Anxious.

Ans.—Well, no, Madame, I would say that cucumbers are not pickles. As a matter of fact, cucumbers are cucumbers, as it were. Although cucumbers become pickles after being pickled; but then, of course on the other hand, they are no longer cucumbers, as I understand it, but pickles, if you see what I mean.

—Aunt (Informative) Bella.

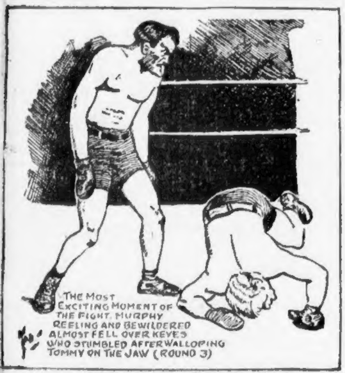
When Murphy-Keyes Fought Furious Bout

WHAT TAD SAW AT FIGHT



THE MOST EXCITING MOMENT OF THE FIGHT. MURPHY REELING AND BEWILDERED ALMOST FELL OVER KEYES WHO STUMBLED AFTER WALLOPING TOMMY ON THE JAW (ROUND 3)
TAD

This series of "Finishes of Old-Time Fights" appears exclusively in the sport pages of the Boston Evening American.

The story today is of the furious six-round battle between Harlem Tommy Murphy and Bert Keyes at the old Sharkey A. C., Columbus ave. and 65th st., Nov. 27, 1907. It was a dead even battle.

By W. S. FARNSWORTH

Ripping and tearing at one another like two fight-mad bulldogs, Murphy and Keyes were pulled apart at the finish of their six-round fight, neither having an inch the better of the battle.

Not even the clang of the final bell stopped the two bloody fighters, for they fought across the ring after the time was up, fought inch for inch along the ropes, first one reeling and then the other. Referee Jim Buckley finally pulled them apart as owners do their fighting terriers.

It was a grand finish of a grand fight, and one that set the high watermark for six-round affairs that were held here 25 years ago. There never was a more stubbornly fought battle. There never was a boy who came through as Murphy did after being practically out in the first round. There never was such a finish as Keyes put up after being battered almost blind for three rounds after that.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

DEAR MR. PUBLIC:

I had my nose down against the old resin at the Arena when Whitey Allen tipped the cockeyed world that Henri DeGlane had agreed to defend his title as world's heavyweight wrestling champion against Jim Browning on next Thursday night.

Mr. Boston

The announcement was such a surprise to me that I felt as if old Gus Sonnenberg had crashed into me with one of his hectic flying tackles. The rest of the gang in the press row felt much the same way. Doc Almy wiped off his eyeglasses and asked Dave Egan if he had heard the announcement correctly. Doc covered wrestling bouts at the Grand Opera House back in the days when you couldn't get folks to attend mat carnivals, even though you gave them a free ticket and slipped them a bonus. Joe Doherty will bear testimony that I'm right, as it was Joe who used to pilot the good Doctor around in one of his flossy gasoline buggies.

Speaking of autos reminds me of a crack Councillor Chester I. Campbell made at that swell dinner they tossed for Percy Lane down in Quincy the other night.

"Nowadays," said Governor Ely's advisor, "they blame these petting parties on the automobile. Didn't they have the horse and buggy in the old days?"

I suppose there were smart horses who preferred roaming along Lover's Lane to the bright lights of the main stem.

"I AM GETTING a long way from DeGlane and Browning, but it is probably because I'm excited about the approaching title bout rather than because I can testify first hand as to what grandma did when she and grandpa got into the back seat of the old buggy during their courting days.

I slipped back into the dressing room to find out if the news about the big bout was true. I found Paul Bowser, the Tex Rickard of the wrestling game, as happy as a bird who has been informed that the bill collectors have all been sent to Asia to help the Japs and Chinese fight it out.

"How about this DeGlane-Browning bout?" I demanded.

"It's set for next Thursday night," chirped Paul with much enthusiasm. "I talked for three hours before I could bring the Frenchman and Browning to terms.

"DeGlane knew he was in a bad spot with the public charging he was afraid of Browning, not to mention that $100,000 suit Jim slapped on him. The champion must have been training secretly, as he finally stated he would wrestle Browning if the match were held next Thursday night. He wouldn't accept any other date.

"BROWNING WENT into a huddle with his lawyers. There were so many legal lights jammed into my office that I thought Governor Ely had called a meeting of candidates for that vacancy on the Supreme Court bench. When the lawyers stopped passing each other, Browning announced he would take on DeGlane next Thursday night.

"I consented to go through with my end of the deal which called for me to pay DeGlane $15,000 and give him the privilege of accepting 37½ per cent of the gate. Browning gets 12½ per cent. I insisted that DeGlane put up $5000 as a forfeit, and he did so.

"Guess that's the whole story. Sorry I cannot stage it at Braves Field. The Arena is not big enough to care for all the folks who will want to see this match, but we'll do the best we can."

RETZLAFF WILL FIGHT FOR TITLE

St. Paul, Minn. (AP)—For the first time since the days of the Tommy Gibbons-Billy Miske series, Minnesota hopes to have an accepted heavyweight boxing champion before spring.

Dick Daniels of Minneapolis and Charley Retzlaff of Duluth are scheduled for a 10-round bout March 1 that seems to have the approval of fans as a championship matching.

Retzlaff, who originally came from North Dakota, has the longer string of knockouts, but ran into trouble when Joe Sekyra whipped him in New York, and the rivals are rated about even.

Gibbons, who stayed 15 rounds with Jack Dempsey in the historic bout at Shelby, Mont., when the Manassan was champion, consistently turned back challenges of Miske for the Minnesota title.

Roughest Sport Stirs Kansas Fans

Kansas City (AP)—Kansas City sports fans would like to know: Which is rougher, hockey or wrestling?

Charles Fischer, Butternut, Wis., grappler, and Abe Coleman of Los Angeles, butted heads recently. Fischer was removed in an unconscious condition to a hospital to determine whether he had suffered a brain concussion.

He hadn't.

In a recent flareup in an American hockey league game a Kansas City player was struck on the head by a club in the hands of an opponent. Three stitches were required to close the wound.

Swim Stadium Nearly Ready

Los Angeles (AP)—The Olympic swimming stadium here where the aquatic events of the IX Olympiad will be held is nearing completion. It will seat 10,000 persons.

No U. S. Boycott!
A War Move That Cannot Be Defended

President Lowell of Harvard suggests that the United States declare an economic boycott upon Japan.

THAT WOULD BE WAR.

An economic boycott IS war.

It is a war of starvation.

It is a war upon women and children.

It was one of the most cruel and un-Christian of the many barbarous methods of war practiced by the hate-mad Nations of Europe in the World War.

It is the kind of war that kept food from starving women and children.

It is the kind of war that kept medical supplies from peoples afflicted by typhus and other deadly scourges.

It is the kind of war that allowed wounded soldiers to undergo emergency major surgical operations without anaesthetics and the other alleviates which could have reduced their pain and anguish.

Mr. Lowell would not have us indulge in this reprehensible method of war alone and on our own.

He would put us in as a private in the ranks of the League of Nations, subject to the command, the caprices and the bitter rivalries of the Nations which dominate that unhealthy institution, which was itself conceived in the hatreds emanating from brutal war. He would put us in under a covenant which authorizes the League to decide what arms, armaments and munitions of destrnction should be employed by the United States to enforce the merciless economic boycott and blockade.

Thus we would be projected into a war which we did not start and in which we have no concern. We would be obligated to perpetrate one of the most sinister forms of war. And we would permit our own American boys to be sacrificed under the maneuvres of war ordained for us by alien Nations which control and manipulate the League of Nations.

There is no sentiment for war in this country and our American people are not going to let themselves be rushed into it by the inconsistencies of pacifists who say they want to avoid war and in the next breath advocate the most contemptible means of warfare.

The sentiment of our American people in this, the 200th birthday anniversary period of General George Washington, is for development of our Army and Navy and other defenses as the most salutary guarantee against the likelihood of war.

Why Not "America"?

In the celebrations of the 200th birthday anniversary of Gen. George Washington efforts are being made to resurrect and repopularize the music of his time.

We of New England, in this connection, have a composition of local origin but of national adoption which properly could be used as the musical theme of any observance in honor of this great patriot.

"America" was written in Boston by a native Bostonian, the Rev. Dr. Samuel Francis Smith, who was born on Sheafe st. in the North End, attended Dame School and Boston Latin and was graduated from Harvard in the class with Oliver Wendell Holmes. It was first sung by the Sunday school children of the Park Street Church, among whom was Edward Everett Hale.

The great anthem came after Gen. Washington, but every syllable of it from the opening words, "My country 'tis of Thee," breathes the sentimental love and devotion of George Washington for his own country. National in spirit and American in motive, this anthem should at this time revive the spirit of sensible Americanism among the indifferent public officials who attend these George Washington observances.

A Seer's Ball of Glass

A woman and a professional seer gazed into a ball of glass.

He saw things there that she couldn't. He saw a way to great wealth for her. Being a gullible woman, she gave him, from time to time, $43,000 of her money.

He disappeared, and her money. The police sought him for years. He had a way of eluding them. Or of not being seen by them. When caught, he had a way of getting himself freed by the habeas corpus or some other fandangle of law known to adroit lawyers. He was a smart man, this seer, because he knew where and how to spend his money.

But at last they got him and brought him back here for trial. The seer paid back the woman some $10,000. He promised to raise $10,000 more for her. But he does not go to jail. He is let out on his promise to pay.

If he had been a mere lad, out for a joyride, and took some broken-down Ford, he would have been put behind the bars for a couple of years, with hardened criminals.

The difference between $43,000 and $20,000 is $23,000. That is a tidy sum, especially in these days. It must be great to be a seer. And have a ball of glass. It tells you how to do things.

Owning Our Own Rails

Governor Ely told the Interstate Commerce Commission that the people of New England want to own and control their railroads.

It was a simple statement of a very important stiuation.

We want all the trunk-line service we can get.

We want the Pennsylvania, the Van Sweringens, the Baltimore & Ohio, the Canadian lines and any others that can supply us with reasonable and efficient transportation of our products to the South and West.

But we want them to come in as our guests and patrons, not as our masters. We want to have some choice in saying how they will behave and respect our hospitality.

They can give us service, it is true. But we can give them one of the richest transportation markets in the United States, or in the world, for that matter. They will come not primarily to help us but to aid themselves.

Pennsylvania control over the New Haven and Boston and Maine ought to be broken. That is the first and the necessary step toward allowing all of the trunk lines to come into New England on an equal footing, without favoritism or partiality and upon terms which New Englanders will have some choice in deciding.

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—Thoughts while strolling: Who remembers when baby doctors were called "sissies"? Jimmy Walker and Lionel Barrymore talk alike. I never remember which one is Una Merkel and which one is Ona Munson. Wonder what Dorothy Parker and Edna Millay would talk about on a desert island?

Ernest Truex, a Red Hill, Mo., boy, who made good in the city. Those derbied fellows who snatch racing papers and go into a trance against lamp posts. Barber shop sign: "Try our hot towel pick-up." That odd twinkle in the eyes of the tenor Harold Murray. Sidney Skolsky's frightened pompadour.

I always lift up the slot and peer into the lett box after a letter, too. Won't those dinky, sawed-off vests look comic in the Gay 1932 pictures 20 years from now. Those wigs of Antoine of Paris look like wet cats to me. Eddie Darling swishing along. John Ringling's winter prowling in art galleries.

Eternal adolescents with ankle socks—and face h'ists. Earl Carroll's enormous modernistic office desk has a snug seat at each corner for chorus cuties he interviews. Nobody has cholera morbus any more. Who remembers ski-ing on barrell staves? Another of my favorite people—Bert Lytell.

An old Broadway wine salesman managing a 7th avenue nut store. Apartment hotels in the 30's. Sitting room parlors, darkey waiters and grown-up bell boys. The Empire has a couple of ground floor tenants. Gene Tunney's window-shopping saunter. "Sport" Ward looks like his name.

One of the featured singing comediennes is a mighty box office magnet despite a flock of physical shortcomings. One shoulder is higher. This is camouflaged by a cape effect on all costumes. Pronouncedly knock-kneed, her skirts come to her ankles. Her stubby fingers, an ugly blunt, are shadowed in graceful length. A scrawny neck is concealed by artfully worn strings of imitation pearls. Yet before the footlights her beauty and symmetry send pulses skipping.

John Drew, long America's ace matinee idol, was seen by audiences only in profile. This was due to a foggily myopic and protruding eye. While the difficulty was no secret in the profession, it was not generally known until a few years before his passing. A. E. Matthews, sterling English actor, conceals a pronounced limp. Herbert Marshall, husband of Edna Best, plays Romeo roles with a romantic dash, although one leg was torn off by shrapnel during the war.

Joe Laurie, Jr., reports things are now so tough that elephants are giving peanuts back to the children and acrobats are sleeping four high.

At 3 a. m. subway trains fill with those toothless, pasty-complexioned and rheumy-eyed ladies who give an incongruous touch of ghastly gaiety to nocturnal life, with their shrill talk and weird laughter. They are the shawled charwomen who scrub floors in downtown skyscrapers. The other morning I stepped into a train filled with the unfortunates. A bleary-eyed and unsympathetic guard, jerking his finger toward them, observed: "Those old cackles are just playing hooky from the Potter Field."

Listen, World!
By Elsie Robinson

Hold Me Steady!

God, hold me steady!
Keep me seeing straight
Through all the darkness
Of these treach'rous years.

I learned in childhood
Certain clear cut rules;
Was taught that some few things
Were always right—

Strong, simple things,
Like honor, kindliness,
Clean living, courage,
Generosity,
And faith in You.
These things, they told me,
Were worth all they cost,
And would withstand
The shock and shift of Time.

But now—I wonder;
Now I am dismayed;
For all things change,
And I have lost Your hand.

The past has vanished
With its simple code.
The present whirls around me
In a fog.
I fumble blindly,
Fail to find a light,
And cannot, sometimes,
Tell the Wrong from Right.

And, from the turmoil,
Voices mock and sneer,
And ask what honor buys,
Or decency.
They cry: "So get it
While the getting's good;
You've but one life;
Don't throw this chance away!"

And other voices,
Soft and snakey wise,
Uphold new standards;
Say: "The times have changed.
Your father's code
Was proper for a child,
But now, you're older.
Turn from fairy tales
And dare to face
The ruthless facts of life."

And so I falter,
Wond'ring where to turn,
While, through the fog,
The tricky half-truths burn
Like will-o'-wisps

God, hold me steady!
Help me in my plight!
And in the darkness
Set your Laws alight,
Like steadfast stars,
To guide me safely home.

Jock McFee's Sad Experience

Said Jock McFee, a friend of mine, in a brogue I can't repeat:
"I'll take no rides from strangers now that I may chance to meet.
They may bid me share their company, but I'll smile and let them pass,
And I'll wait to ride in the city bus which never runs out of gas.

"He looked the gentleman every inch as up to the curb he came.
'Would you care to ride to the town,' said he. And how could I know his game,
Since a penny saved is a penny earned, and bus fare's more than that I gladly climbed in his motor car and settled myself to chat.

"We skipped along for a block or two, when a sputtering sound was heard.
'I believe I am out of gas!' said he; 'but how fortunate this occurred
As close to a station as we are. We'll fill up the tank right here.'
Then I saw him fumble his pockets through and fancied his face looked queer.

"'I am sorry my friend to tell you this, but I haven't a cent with me,
Will you lend me enough to pay for the gas, until next we meet,' said he.
Which I did, reluctantly, I confess, for I made up my mind right then
That many a year would come and go ere ever we'd meet again.

"And now though the snows are drifted deep and the winds are blowing strong,
I'll gladly stand on the curb and wait 'til a bus shall come along.
I'll remember this sad experience, and a cold, cold day 'twill be Ere another stranger into his car shall lure old Jock McFee."

Silhouettes

ONE CANNOT but deplore the lack of the martial note in the program of the observance of the 200th birthday of the Father of His Country at the capital which bears his name. We seem, somehow, to have slipped somewhat, since the more sturdy days of the centennial celebration.

THE DISTRICT authorities in charge of the local arrangements appear to have put the soft pedal on the fact that Washington was, first of all, a warrior, and that if he had not been, we should be singing at the front of the Capitol on Monday the same tune, perhaps, but with the words, "God Save the King."

* * *

ONE HUNDRED YEARS ago it was the military organization, in the city of Washington, which took charge of the centennial celebration, and made a success of it, after the national and the District of Columbia governments had about concluded to do nothing whatever in commemoration of the momentous anniversary. Congress had planned to remove the remains of Washington from Mt. Vernon to the Capitol, and when Virginia vetoed this plan, it left the George Washington centennial completely up in the air.

Inflation: Hoarding: Results, Not Causes
By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American.

THE BANK BILL intended to hurry business recovery has passed the House with a business-like dispatch that must satisfy the most severe critics of debate. Three hours were allowed for the discussion. If this measure will restore prosperity speedily no one will doubt that the Democratic House has put country above party, for the revival of business will be credited not to the Democrats, nor to co-operation, but to the Hoover Administration.

In these days of dire danger to us all, no party can afford to play small politics with human misery. And that the Democratic House has not done. Postponing purely political speeches, and proper and deserved criticism of the blunders of the Administration until later, it has taken up every measure proposed by the President, considered it in a broad way, and acted upon it with a minimum of delay.

There is no doubt that currency inflation is the purpose of this bank measure; and whether it is to be a reasonable or an unwholesome and dangerous inflation will depend upon the Federal Reserve Board. That board did not act to the extent of its power for the protection of the public in 1928 and 1929; but perhaps it has learned its lesson.

A Note of Warning

Meanwhile the mere pendency of the bill, with the certainty of its enactment, has had an effect which is not wholesome. Stock market-minded statesmanship, such as we have had in the Treasury from the day Mr. Mellon entered, still confuses wild speculation with prosperity; and someone circulated some exaggerated reports on the effect of the bank bill. This resulted in another wild flurry on the stock market, and Senator Glass sounds a note of worning:

> "The people who have sent out these exaggerated reports about this bill and started another riot of speculation on the Stock Exchange are very culpable and are causing the loss of many millions of dollars to persons who have been utterly misinformed as to the requirements of this bill."

This use of false reports by the sharks among speculators is not new; it makes one of the interesting stories of the very first days of the Republic.

Confidence Must Be Restored

While this flurry of the market was on, and the moron-minded heaved a sigh of relief that "prosperity is coming back"—

Not a jobless man was being put to work.

Not one drop of milk was being put in the mouth of a hungry child.

Not one eviction order was cancelled.

Not one package more of American goods was being loaded in a transatlantic ship for the foreign markets.

And the merchants observe no increase in their trade.

And no manufacturer put on extra help because of an increase in orders.

Prosperity depends primarily upon trade—at home and in foreign markets; and, artificially, the Administration has destroyed our foreign markets. There can be no revival of home trade, so vital to the merchants, so long as 8,000,000 men are out of work, involving 24,000,000 men, women and children who no longer have the money with which to buy.

This appalling situation is responsible for the hoarding—and the hoarders will not put their money in circulation either through the purchase of goods, or stocks, or by putting it in the banks, until confidence is restored.

The restoration of trade depends upon jobs for the vast army denied the right to work; and these will not get work until there is a greater need to manufacture goods; and there will be no increased demand on the factory until there is an increased demand at the store; and there will be no increased demand at the store until jobless men get work.

With the manufacturer unable to furnish jobs, the Government could, on needed public work, through a prosperity loan—but it won't.

A more pressing problem than getting hoarded money in circulation is that of getting jobless men to work with wages.

"A Great and Wise Leader"

And how is Mr. Hoover's committee going to get this hoarded money out of hiding? The hoarders are not misers; they would rather make money on their money through investment; but they would rather have what they have, than to lose it. The only way to get this money out is to restore the confidence of the owners—for it is their money—in the Government and the leaders in government and finance.

So the committee will make a "house-to-house canvass"—presumably asking everyone if they are hoarding.

Some will lie.

Some will say: "It is none of your business."

Some will admit it, and, when asked why, they will reply that they have seen so much skullduggery and deception they no longer have faith in anything.

When the committee tells them that in the President we have "a great and wise leader" who is also an engineer, and that the Administration promises a return of prosperity, they may answer that the President promised an "elimination of poverty" if elected, and that there was a "house-to-house" canvass on business streets in 1928 by men who said Hoover would mean "prosperity."

And they may quote a long string of "reassurances" from Administration spokesmen since 1928 that sound "fishy" now. Even the canvassers may blush a bit.

A mere child who has been burned is chary of the stove.

"American Relief" Measures

All the "American relief" measures of the Administration have to do with money, and none with men.

It has concerned itself with—

How to get more money in circulation.

How to help the bankers.

How to keep up the earnings of the railroads.

All this is important and desirable, and the Administration has smashed all precedents, and trampled like an army with banners over the "American way" in rendering service here.

Meanwhile, private business has been concerning itself with men—forcing wages down to keep dividends up.

The "Best Minds" None Too Good

The truth is, as Cordell Hull so well said in the Senate the other day, that the Administration is still dealing superficially with the crisis—concerning itself with results and not with causes. It has stubbornly set its face against even an effort to revive our foreign trade; it refuses even to consider or study the silver problem in its relation to our trade in the silver countries of the Far East; it refuses even to attempt to find a way to save the mining industry; and long ago it washed its hands of the millions denied the inalienable right to work.

The crisis is not due to policies followed in the last three years alone; the crash came because of the accumulated policies of stupidity and selfishness in the last 11 years. The "Best Minds" that came in with Hoover have been none too good.
